'Good neighbors' not alone during tragedy

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

A Romulus family which has distinguished itself by being life-long "good neighbors" in the community is learning in its time of tragedy that favors are repaid.

The friends and relatives of the John Hadyniak family of 11566 St. Aloysius St., Romulus, have run to the family's aid following the tragic death of 2-year-old Craig Hadyniak May 21.

The youngster, one of five children of John and Esther Hadyniak, was killed early Friday evening when a garage door which his father was storing between a fence and the family's garage fell on him, inflicting fatal head and neck injuries.

For nearly an hour before the boy's body was found between the door and another lying on its side, friends, relatives and total strangers from as far away as Monroe and Milan rushed to the Five-Points area of Romulus in an effort to find the missing youngster.

"I was amazed at the response of the people," Hadyniak said. "We called the sheriff and the fire department when Craig was missing at 4:15 p.m., and somehow the people with citizens' band radios got the message, and sent it out.

"People came from all over to help us search, and were there in the backyard when we found Craig."

The family believed at first that the blonde-haired youngster had wandered away from the family home, and didn't search the fenced-in yard, particularly the area between the garage and the fence.

It was an hour after the search started that a firefighter from Romulus spotted the child's red shirt, and pulled the garage door away.

"I grabbed him and gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation," said Hadyniak, a volunteer firefighter in Romulus. "I thought I got a response, and kept on working until the Sheriff's department got there with oxygen and rushed him to the hospital.

"But the doctor said it was too late."

had fallen on the boy's neck, apparently killing him instantly.

After the youngster's body was found, the friends and relatives who had flocked there to help remained with the family to help it cope with the tragedy.

"I can say without their support, many strangers included, we couldn't bear up under this," said Hadyniak at the Baum Funeral Home in Romulus. "The people have been wonderful to us."

The 47-year-old father is a life-long resident of Romulus who has worked better than 25 years for the Romulus Board of Education, starting as a custodian and working his way up to foreman of transportation.

During his time with the schools, Hadyniak served as a volunteer firefighter and as president of the Romulus non-teaching employees union for nearly 12 years.

It was during those associations, and as supervisor of better than 65 transportation employees, that Hadyniak apparently made an impression on the community.

Many bus drivers requested an "Act of God" day from the Romulus Board of Education in order to attend the youngster's funeral. Other drivers volunteered to work without pay to fill in for those who wanted to spend the day with Hadyniak and his family.

In addition, the city's volunteer fire fighting force took time to escort the funeral procession to the Michigan Memorial Cemetery in Westland for interment Tuesday.

"It's been a difficult time for all of us," Hadyniak said. "But the help of hundreds of people has made it a bit easier."

"I wish I could thank them each individually, but I don't even know some of the people who came."

Among those Hadyniak said he would like to thank for their efforts both during the search and the funeral arrangements were the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol, the Romulus Fire Department, the operators of citizens' band radios, Romulus Board of Education employees, Romulus City employees, the Taylor Ambulance Co. and neighbors of the Hadyniaks.

Besides his parents, the

CRAIG HADYNIK

Hadyniak youngster is survived by two sisters, Linda Lee Fee, 23, Taylor, and Lorie Beth, 18; and two brothers, Johnny Michael, 22, and Scott, 8. Scott is a student at the Romulus Elementary School. The family is asking that any memorials be sent to the Baum Funeral Home in Romulus.

Stewart's 'open communications' with road agency reaping dividends

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

The mayor of Romulus is claiming his new attitude toward "open communications" with the Wayne County Road Commission is winning the city some benefits.

Mayor James C. Stewart said that workers have begun resurfacing six areas of Romulus after only two meetings with the Wayne County Road Commission, during which mutual problems were discussed.

Crews from the road commission have completed resurfacing Eureka Road from Inkster to Middlebelt Road and placing an asphalt binder on the road from Middlebelt to Merriman Road, and are finishing up resurfacing Goddard Road between Vining and Wayne roads.

Also scheduled for repaving are Middlebelt Road between Van Buren and Eureka roads, Van Buren on either side of the C and O Railroad tracks and extensive asphalt spot patching on Ecorse, Inkster and Hannan roads.

"This is a real tribute to the cooperation we now are experiencing with the road commission," Stewart said. "It's the frank and open communications between the city and the road commission which has helped us straighten this out."

After taking office in March, Stewart had vowed to bring with the Wayne County Road Commission over the destiny of Metropolitan Airport, stating that he wished to work with the commission in an effort to achieve the goals of both the road commission and the city with the greatest benefit to the citizens.

For two years prior to his taking office, Stewart claimed that the fighting over the airport harmed Romulus more than it helped the community.

Road Commission spokesmen would not indicate whether road paving programs were halted in Romulus because of the two-year running battle over the commission's right to expand Metropolitan Airport.

However, road work in the community is the first significant action in Romulus other than rerouting Eureka Road for the expansion of the airport.

"I'm working on other programs for the city right now, including possibly the resurfacing of Hannan Road," Stewart said. "The way the deal seems to be shaping up is that the road commission will handle the county portion of Hannan Road, providing the city does the work on the city portion of the road.

"That's a significant step for the persons in that area of Romulus, and should benefit the entire community."

In addition, Stewart claims he had an agreement from the road commission to deed over a corner of the Metropolitan Airport to the city for a fire station, only to have the plan mixed by federal government regulations.

"We're making some significant progress for this community with this activity," Stewart said. "I think the people should know."

City's newest citizen takes drudgery out of work

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

One of Romulus' newest citizens, the Detroit Diesel Allison Division Parts Manufacturing plant located on Ecorse Road, is demonstrating that life in industry need not be a drudge.

Besides deadening the noise which is often associated with manufacturing at the 496,000-square-foot facility, General Motors has managed to brighten up the traditionally dreary interior of industrial plants with some "off-beat" colors and ease the workload of the nearly 900 employees working there.

"The employees said they'd like a change in colors from the old parts plant in Redford, and worked on it," explained Olin Hunsucker, plant engineer for the manufacturing facility. "The decisions on color were arrived at through the efforts of both the employees and their bosses, and I must say they brighten up the place considerably."

But paint was a minor problem during the nearly two-years it took the Diesel operation to gear up to the ability to function at its full capacity—a capacity which will enable the Allison Division to increase its engine manufacturing by 25 percent. Currently, Allison produces 130,000 engines a year.

The major problem for Hunsucker was insuring that a plant designed in 1973 with one concept in machinery needed to manufacture parts could accommodate the machinery delivered in 1975-76.

"The technology is always changing, and the configurations for the new machines we need are changing from year to year, as the machines are designed for greater efficiency," Hunsucker explained. "That means that cooling lines which were designed to be placed in one area in 1973 had to be moved to insure they served the same purpose when the machines were installed."

"It's an ever continuing problem in any plant, as not only are machines purchased new to begin

. . . General Motors has managed to brighten up the traditionally dreary interior of industrial plants with 'off-beat' colors.

production, but also because machines are replaced as their efficiency decreases."

Hunsucker could not detail the exact number of parts which are manufactured on a daily basis at the sprawling facility, but said that nearly 100 tons of metal shavings from machining operations at the plant are sent to a reclaiming center each day.

And the plant isn't at its optimum production yet, since some machinery still is being installed.

The facility, in addition to the most modern, and quiet manufacturing schemes available, features a full heat-treat center for high-tolerance parts, a full enclosed dock for unloading and loading up to 20 vehicles at once, and as many as 12,000 storage cubicles for keeping a 30-day supply of parts on hand at any one time.

The storage section is unique in manufacturing in this area, as it is operated by a fully computerized system which directs machinery to place parts in an empty cubicle and to remove them when needed.

"All it takes is the right program, and the machinery can find an empty space and fill it in the storage grid," explained Dave Gosler, a staff public relations employee with GM Diesel.

"The system is especially important when you consider that the computer keeps track of all empty spaces, and can't lose parts," explains Hunsucker. "If there were a need for parts immediately, and no large area to store them, the computer can find individual spaces scattered throughout the system to insure that the parts are stored efficiently."

Ironically, in the time of declining energy resources, diesel engines are more in demand, because it is diesel power plants which power the search for fuel, and the delivery of that fuel.

Combined with the overall efficiency of diesel engines in hauling loads, the demand for Detroit Diesel products is increasing, adding to the job security of workers such as Hunsucker and the 900 production employees at the plant.

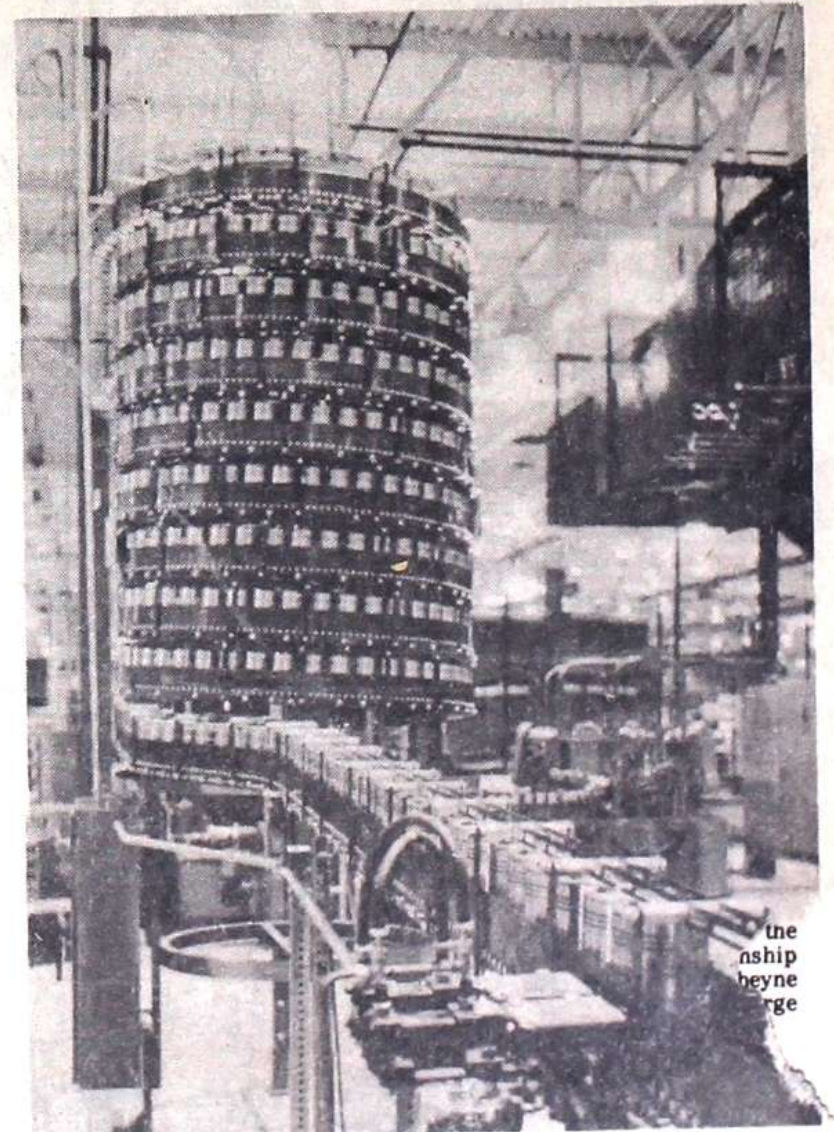

But job security may not be enough to keep a worker satisfied, and GM is making moves to make the work more enjoyable for the employees.

Among the plans is the construction of an attractive, landscaped outdoor eating area in a park setting amid the wooded area saved from destruction by the planners of the facility.

"We always have to remember that even though these people may be factory workers, they have the same goals as anyone else," Hunsucker said. "They want a family, a clean home, food on the table and a good job."

"So it's a good attitude displayed by GM when it constructs something like a park, or paints the plant with something other than traditional colors."

"It's a demonstration by the company that these employees are people, with some dignity, and that the corporation is concerned about them enough to make their work as enjoyable as possible."

Voter trend goes against state's Local voters broke the voting trend in Michigan during the May 18 presidential primary balloting. Voters gave a substantial margin of their votes to Jimmy Carter, while state-wide, Carter barely edged out Morris Udall, and the voters reduced President Gerald R. Ford's nearly 2-1 state-wide victory over challenger Ronald Reagan to a small margin.

Counting the tallies of Belleville, Romulus and Van Buren Township together, local voters went 1,623-1,262 in favor of Carter during his race with Udall. The 1972 No. 1 finisher in the race, George Wallace, came in a poor third in the local area, scoring only 419 votes.

In the Ford Reagan race, the largely Democratic area gave the President a 1,772-1,528 margin of victory.

However, trends throughout the county on the millage for a new Wayne County jail were reflected in the area, with tallies going 3,943 yes to 1,914 no on the millage.

Romulus voters, who went overboard for Wallace four years ago, gave the former Alabama governor only 275 votes while they went for the former Georgia Governor—Carter—with 1,044 votes. Udall received 745 votes in the city.

Ford barely edged Reagan with a 751-718 margin, but the county millage went by a better than 2-1 margin—2,032 to 968.

Wallace scored but 19 votes in Belleville, as residents went for Udall with 110 votes and gave Carter 74.

The Ford-Reagan race in the state was reflected accurately in Belleville with Ford scoring an easy 226-124 victory.

The county millage passed by a nearly 3-1 margin with 349 yes to 136 no.

Van Buren voters gave Carter the overall nod in the Democratic primary with 505 votes to Udall's 407 and Wallace's 125.

Ford beat Reagan 795-686. The millage passed at 1,562-810.

News Analysis

Whistle stops pay off

LANSING — It was nearly four weeks ago and Jerry Roe, executive secretary of the Michigan Republican party, was in Kansas City doing some advance work for the party national convention this summer.

"I had a few hours to spare so I went over to Independence to the Truman Library," he said. "While I was there I saw a 15 minute film about his 1948 campaign with several whistle stop scenes.

'It got him out where the people could see him...'

whistle stop tour should have so much impact, since Ford has said repeatedly he admires Truman and the way he conducted the office of president.

McLaughlin said he will be putting together a quick report on how things were done in the remaining primary states by Ford people. Neither he nor anyone else is sure the whistle stop approach will or won't be used again.

For one thing it's expensive and for another, the security problems with such a trip have mushroomed since 1948 as security around the president becomes tighter and tighter. On May 15, for instance, there were two trains run by Secret Service preceding the president's train and another following up. In addition, every rail station along the route had to be secured. It was a massive job for the federal, state and local officials.

If the things learned in Michigan are heeded, however, it's a sure bet the president will be seen more in the upcoming primary states.

"I had one national reporter tell me the president finally became a real presidential candidate on May 12," McLaughlin said.

With the results that change brought on, they want to prolong it.

"He drew great crowds with them and I said to myself, 'Why don't we do that with the President?' Well, I threw the idea out at a meeting a week ago Friday and everybody loved it so we did it."

And that is how the pivotal event in what could be one of the pivotal moments of the 1976 election season came about.

In the aftermath of President Gerald Ford's smashing triumph over Ronald Reagan in Michigan, everyone agreed his whistle stop tour through southern Michigan on May 15 was a key element.

"It got him out where the people could see him," said state GOP Chairman William McLaughlin.

That summed up the strategy of the Ford people in Michigan — to get the President out where he could be seen, and to get themselves organized.

The organizing step came on May 9 at Metropolitan Airport in Detroit when Gov. William G. Milliken and other party figures met with national Ford Chairman Rogers Morton. They told him that there had been no direction for the campaign from Washington and that nothing was being done. The best bet, they said, was to turn the Michigan people loose on the state. He agreed to that and the remainder of the campaign was run under the direction of McLaughlin, state Ford Chairman Peter Fletcher, Joyce Braithwaite from the governor's office and Jim DeFrancis from Sen. Robert Griffin's office.

A concerted get-out-the-Ford-vote effort was launched from 11 phone banks and 25 other private phones around the state and more than 100,000 calls were made.

That was coupled with carefully planned appearances by Ford including a trip to southeast Michigan on May 12, the whistle stop tour May 15 and stops in Grand Rapids and Saginaw on May 16. The idea was to get the President out where the most people could see him in a presidential setting.

The organization went down to the courthouse level.

"I've never seen the party in this state coalesce like it did behind the President," said House Republican Leader Dennis Cawthorne of Manistee. "The people at the courthouse level really got involved. I know I said to my people 'Do you want another 1964?' and they responded. They remember that 1964 was when even people in the courthouse got swept out in the tide."

One of the reasons Michigan was crucial to the president was the fact he comes from here, but the party people had the problem that he had never run outside of the 5th Congressional District in his life.

The trips to the state, primarily the train trip on Saturday, helped emphasize his Michigan connections and helped turn him into a "home-town boy" in the eyes of voters who many have never looked at him that way before. It was especially ironic that a

The Belleville Senior Citizens Club recently celebrated "Grandparent Night" and members of the club were entertained by several grandchildren of club members.

Lissa and Morton Potter opened the show with three viola and cello performances. Kellie Brandt played the guitar as part of a sing-along. Tim Hunter came to the "night"

Secretary of State unit takes vacation

One business in the Belleville community will be taking an extended vacation this summer.

According to officials of the Secretary of State's office, the Belleville branch of the unit will close its doors Memorial Day and remain closed until Labor Day in September.

Residents who have transactions with the branch office are asked to complete their business before the close of the current business week.

'Come and see us'

Romulus-area residents will have an opportunity to tour the facilities of their largest taxpayer June 3 and 4.

The Detroit Diesel Allison Division of General Motors is inviting all area residents to tour the Detroit Diesel plant, recently opened on Ecorse Road just west of the C and O railroad tracks in Romulus.

Visiting hours are scheduled from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. June 3 and from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. June 4.

Detroit Diesel will be hosting an open house not only at its Romulus parts manufacturing facility, but also at its parts distribution center located in the city and its Redford engine assembly plant.

On hand for ceremonies June 3 to dedicate the Romulus manufacturing plant and to mark the construction of Detroit Diesel's 2-millionth engine, will be Romulus Mayor James C. Stewart, power and appliance group General Manager James E. Knott, and diesel operations manager Charles Karrer.

Planned for the open house are self-guided, wide-aisle tours of the plant.

Olympic competitors

Camp Fire Girls from throughout the organization's Downriver District were on hand recently to test their skills in a Zatakinian Horizon Club-sponsored Olympic program. The youngsters in grades 1 through 6 tested their skills at dashes, hurdles, sack races and softball throws as part of the competition, held at Lower Huron Metropark near Belleville.

Construction of new jail could begin in early fall

The chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners has said construction of new county jail facilities is expected to begin in early fall as a result of the strong voter approval of funding for the project.

"With this overwhelming response, we are gearing up for construction as quickly as possible and expect to break ground in early fall," John Barr said.

Wayne County voters approved a special 5-year property levy of .5 mill (50 cents per $1,000 of equalized valuation) to finance the project in the May 18 presidential primary election. The wide margin of approval — 275,785 "yes" to 104,274 "no" — surprised most supporters of the proposal.

"I think the people voted the way they did for two reasons," Barr said. "They felt it was the wise and economic way to finance our new facility, and I think they were saying to government, 'we want law and order and we're willing to pay for it."

"It is significant that the 3-1 margin was consistent throughout the county. We expected a strong positive response in Detroit, but were uncertain about the suburban areas. But this vote showed that people realize crime has no respect for political boundaries and, therefore, neither should our efforts to defend against it."

Barr prior to the election had warned that new jail facilities would have to be built regardless, due to a 720-prisoner limit imposed at the present jail by a 3-judge Circuit Court panel.

The alternative to the millage, if it failed, would have been the issuance of bonds with interest costs adding as much as $90 million to the cost of financing.

The millage will raise a total of $35 million over its 5-year life, at a total cost of $30 for the average homeowner, based on an average residential assessed valuation of $12,000 in Wayne County.

Preliminary (schematic) design of the new jail annex already has been completed and the Board of Commissioners appropriated $1.3 million for detailed architectural drawings several months ago.

Plans call for a 400-prisoner detention facility on the old Recorder's Court site one block south of the present jail on Clinton Street in downtown Detroit. The new facility will be linked to the present jail and Recorder's Court by tunnel.

Sheriff William Lucas, who is in charge of the jail, said the vote showed "that people in the community involved themselves in a useful way and decided that the jail matter be put to rest once and for all."

"The community-wide support of the millage proposition certainly was a factor in its overwhelming passage. The newspapers, radio, television, and community organizations are to be commended for the great job they did in informing the voters about the facts involved in the question."

Classes to assist parents

The Wayne County Department of Health will conduct a new series of classes for expectant parents.

The summer classes which will be held at the new South Health Center at 21201 Eureka, Taylor, will meet on Tuesdays beginning with June 22, and will end July 27.

The classes using group discussion methods will be led by a public health nurse and will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. for six consecutive weeks.

Since the size of the group will be limited, interested persons are urged to register as early as possible. For registration or further information, call the Wayne County Department of Health at 274-2800 or 721-0200, ext. 6901, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on weekdays.

Camp Fire Girls are Horizon 'Olympians'

More than 300 Camp Fire Girls from the Downriver District were on hand recently for the Olympic Games Day '76, held at Lower Huron Metropark near Belleville.

The program, sponsored by Johnston's Zatakinian Horizon Club, attracted young girls in grades 1 through 6 from Wayne, Allen Park, Westland, Taylor, Wyandotte, Romulus, Lincoln Park, Woodhaven, Trenton and Riverview.

The "Bugler's Dream", the official Olympic song, was played as the games opened. Flags representing each of the Camp Fire groups taking part in the contest were displayed during the opening ceremony's parade.

Included in the ceremony was the presentation of the official flags of the State of Michigan, the United States and the Olympics, as well as the Camp Fire Girls and Zatakinian flags.

Helium-filled balloons containing messages from the participants also were released, and the group as a whole sang the national anthem prior to the start of the contests.

The girls during the day participated in the 25- and 50-yard dashes, sack races, hurdles, softball throw, obstacle course and standing broad jump, as well as team competition in the crab crawl relay or hop, skip and jump dash relay.

Competition also permitted the girls to enter two individual events and one relay race.

At the conclusion of the events the awards were presented and closing ceremonies held.

Each girl participating received a specially designed Olympic patch and ribbon with a similar design. The ribbons were awarded to the first-, second- and third-place finishers.

Wayne, Westland and Romulus winners were Kelly Borico, Melody Forde, Kelly Mainly, Diane Baily, Laura Nelson, Julie Lents, Janice Kopczyk, Kathy McGuire, Cheryl Nastal, Shannon White and Tammy Kushner.

Also winning were Holly Harrington, Kristin Moss, Tonya Green, Kristen Madison, Camala Gindorf, Margaret Atkinson, Stacy Spidell and Shannon Kushner.

The Olympic torch, lit earlier in the day, was extinguished and "Taps" played to signal the conclusion of the event.

The games were planned entirely by the members of the Zatakinian Horizon Club as a Woneo Medallion requirement. The medallion is the highest award in the Camp Fire Girls, and can be earned by only high school-aged Camp Fire Girls.

Planning the event were Suzanne Gonzales, Julie Johnston, Kathy Wyand, Sherri Markey, Chris Walters and Theresa Sylvester, all Wayne residents.

They group began working of the event seven months ago. Assisting in the program as staff members at the Olympics were members of the Discovery Club—Shirley Hornyak, Joan Greenshaw, Betty Reynolds and Carole Blackburn. Horizon Club girls assisting were from Betty Monske's and Pat Atkinson's groups.

Several members of the Wayne Memorial High School Swim team also were on hand during the day.

SEMCOG sponsors meeting

Citizens in southeast Michigan will have an opportunity to learn about water quality standards at a series of Town Hall meetings, sponsored by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, set to begin tomorrow in Wayne County.

This will be the first in a series of meetings designed to explain water quality standards as they relate to the overall water quality management plan in southeast Michigan.

Citizens will be informed of what water quality standards are, how they are set, what SEMCOG is doing to revise those standards, and how the standards will affect citizen communities in the region.

The meeting tomorrow will be held at the Ramada Inn, 8270 Wickham, Romulus, and will be targeted at citizens in and around Wayne and Monroe counties. It will start at 7 p.m.

They will have an opportunity to ask questions concerning water quality standards for their locale and find out what they can do to influence those standards.

SEMCOG is a voluntary association of governmental units in Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, St. Clair, Washtenaw and Wayne counties.

Realty's 1st quarter is 'best' ever

Earl Keim Realty, Inc., reports that the first quarter of 1976 was the best quarter in its history, with gross sales of $35,670,507.

This was a 6.49-percent increase over the second quarter of 1975, and a 46-percent increase over the first quarter of 1975.

Units sold totaled 1,025, with an average selling price of $34,800.

Earl Keim Realty, Inc. also has opened two new offices, one each in Rochester and Fraser.

"God knows, I'd like to help, but..."
But what?

Do you really think God will settle for that? If you can't do things alone, join with others at your local synagogue or church. Example: in Montana, one congregation was disturbed by the lack of adequate housing for senior citizens. Because of their concern, today there is a new non-profit home for them. The God we worship expects us to help our neighbors.

Northville site added to program

Alcohol rehabilitation center to expand

The most comprehensive inpatient alcohol rehabilitation center in the nation will be established at the former Wayne County Child Development Center near Northville under a plan approved by the Public Works Committee of the County Board of Commissioners.

The committee's endorsement of the plan to lease the facilities, located on 700 acres of county property, to the Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center was announced jointly by County Commissioners John Lesinski and Edgar L. Harris, committee chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, and R. Vaughn A. Quinn, director of the Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center.

Fr. Quinn said the addition of the Northville facility to his program, which now has a center in downtown Detroit, will increase his patient capacity from 143 to 300 and extend care to women and youthful patients for the first time.

Lesinski said county officials had been searching for the best possible public use of the Child Development Center since it closed in late 1974.

"This decision will take an idle facility, with a replacement value of $14.5 million, and put it back into use for a most necessary and urgent public purpose," he said. "At no expense to them, the taxpayers of Wayne County will gain an expanded rehabilitation program which is sorely needed and nationally-recognized for its success."

Currently, the Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center is located at 569 E. Elizabeth in Detroit. The plan calls for the Detroit facility to be used as a 25-bed detoxification unit and a halfway house for recovering alcoholics. It will continue to house family counseling, employment and social services, Fr. Quinn said.

Commissioner Harris strongly emphasized the advantage of such a move for county taxpayers.

"The county taxpayers will save a total of $1,250,000 over the 5-year lease period because the quarter of a million dollars the county now spends each year to maintain the campus and its buildings will be paid by the program," he said.

Under terms of the proposal, the State Department of Social Services will pay $3,756,801 to lease the facilities under a 5-year contract.

"If we operate at maximum capacity — and certainly the need and the demand are there, the total cost of the program to the state, including rent and treatment, will run $2,400,811 per year," Fr. Quinn added.

Fr. Quinn said his program has achieved success because "it is the longest, toughest, most intense inpatient alcoholic treatment program in the nation."

"We treat patients intensively with all support services for an absolute minimum of 17 weeks. No other program in the country is comparable," he explained.

Fr. Quinn also pointed out that use of the county facility will make it possible to admit women and youth to his treatment program for the first time because separate quarters will be available.

"This is extremely important for young people and their families," he emphasized. "Leading experts predict that between 1978 and 1980, 7 percent of our youth between the ages of 14 and 18 will be affected detrimentally by alcohol."

Lesinski said the community needs expanded treatment programs as evidenced by a Wayne County Department of Substance Abuse Services report which states that less than 1 percent of the alcoholics in Wayne County are receiving treatment.

Fr. Quinn added: "That means that 99.2 percent of them are receiving no help and are, in effect, dying."

In addition to persons eligible for Department of Social Service assistance, the program will continue to accept private patients on an ability-to-pay basis, Fr. Quinn said. Some health insurance plans also cover the cost of treatment and, he hopes, Blue Cross-Blue Shield soon will extend coverage.

Expressing his delight with the prospect of moving into the Northville Center where he plans to use 20 buildings, including a hospital, Fr. Quinn continued: "The type of facilities it offers makes the Northville Center absolutely ideal for our program because everything is out there — clinics, offices, classrooms, recreational facilities, residential quarters and vocational training equipment. You just can't beat it anywhere."

Commissioner Harris said one minor problem remained to be solved by county officials and that involves the North-west Center Health Department branch now operating out of the hospital building on the Northville grounds.

"We'll have to find another suitable building on the same grounds for this important operation of the county health department," he said. "The branch now offers much needed health services for children in the area, principally health screening and immunizations. The Board of Commissioners definitely wants to see that work continued."

The plan still needs approval by the County Board of Auditors and the full Board of Commissioners.

Area meetings

The monthly meeting of the Communities United for Action - Romulus Council will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the local office, located at 35351 Beverly Road, Romulus. The office is east of Wayne Road on Beverly Road opposite Beverly Elementary School.

The main work of the meeting will be the election of council officers for the 1976-77 year.

CUFA provides energy saving

Although most Western Wayne County residents have long forgotten the cold, snowy weather of the past winter, one agency in the area is ready to help low-income families stay warm next winter while keeping their fuel bills down.

Communities United for Action (CUFA), as well as the Neighborhood Services Department (NSD), have been awarded Energy Conservation grants to purchase and install insulation in the homes of low-income families in the area.

A Federal Energy Administration study has shown that low-income families spend about 11 percent of their income on natural gas and electricity, while those families with incomes exceeding $16,000 use on 2 percent of their pay for those basic items.

One of the main causes of exaggerated fuel bills, a situation which cropped up during the early months of 1976 when fuel bills soared and temperatures dipped below zero, is the lack of adequate insulation. Those who can afford it have had insulation installed, however, low-income families have become trapped in a 2-sided predicament, a CUFA spokesman said.

Low-income families cannot afford to purchase home insulation and because of the large amount of income spent on gas and electricity the funds are not available.

With the grant CUFA can help residents caught in that mess get ahead of their fuel bills.

The program has been in effect for about one year, but CUFA has had trouble attracting Supplemental Security Income (SSI) clients, a condition for continuation of the grant. The requirement is that the two agencies serve a proportionate number of SSI recipients to keep receiving the money.

Those in the SSI category may be 65 years of age and older, blind and disabled.

Paradox of African policy noted

The paradox of U.S. policy toward Africa was noted recently by President Ford. For decades we urged European nations to give up their colonies on the continent, while "the Soviet Union barely lifted a finger."

The result? The Soviet Union now is wrongly perceived by some Africans to be "the great power that is interested in freeing people from colonial rule or oppression," says Mr. Ford.

Frustrating as this may be, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has in the course of making his first tour of Africa south of the Sahara embarked on a too-zealous catch-up game with the Soviets that is not only cynical but fraught with the risk of a race war in southern Africa.

In an effort to cancel out the new Soviet bridgehead in Angola, Mr. Kissinger courted Africa's black leaders by warning Rhodesia that it could expect this country's "unrelenting opposition" to white rule until a negotiated settlement is reached with leaders of black nationalists.

The secretary made these promises:

To seek Congressional repeal of the Byrd Amendment permitting U.S. imports of chrome from Rhodesia in spite of U.N. sanctions against trade with that country. (This would increase our dependency on Russia, currently our number one supplier of this vital defense material.) To seek $12.5 million in aid to Marxist Mozambique, now serving as staging area for terrorist raids on Rhodesian farmers and tourists in Rhodesia. To urge Americans to leave Rhodesia and to stay away. And to urge other nations to observe trade sanctions with Rhodesia.

Such sweeping commitments thereby deprive this country of all freedom of action, of all options in dealing with future developments in Africa. There is little that this country could do now if Cuba dispatched its 12,000 troops in Angola to join the nationalist guerrillas in Rhodesia.

In slamming the door on Rhodesia and calling for an end to the "institutionalized separation of races" in South Africa, Mr. Kissinger studiously avoided visiting either country. However, in six stops he had no compunction against taking his message to nations ruled by black dictatorships.

In fact, of the 49 countries in Africa, 15 are under direct military control and 29 are one-party regimes. When we start attaching moral values on the absence of majority rule in countries such as Rhodesia, we quickly become vulnerable to charges of double-standard foreign policy.

It is of course entirely proper for this nation to press Prime Minister Ian Smith to resume negotiations with Rhodesian nationalists leading to a greater sharing of power. Ian Smith has claimed there would be no majority rule in his lifetime, but it is only realistic to believe that Rhodesia cannot stand alone indefinitely, although Britain and the United States should act to safeguard the role of minorities in the future.

In criticizing Mr. Kissinger's Africa policy it must be recognized that Congress shares equally in the responsibility. Had not the Senate, led by Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., last December cut off aid to pro-Western forces in Angola, the Secretary of State perhaps would not be undercutting Rhodesia today.

But it would be far better to counter Soviet influence in Africa through economic sanctions elsewhere and by mounting a propaganda campaign alerting the Africans to what happens when the Russians are in command. Ask the Armenians, the Jews, the Egyptians.

But to wave the big stick at little Rhodesia only signals black Africa that we will stand aside for anything it wants to do to topple the Rhodesian government. Not only is it a cynical policy that smacks of Munich-type appeasement, but, we predict, it will fail to slow the Soviet grab for power in Africa.

As I see it

Panax emerges as 'third voice'

By BOB COCHRANE
Editor of The Enterprise-Roman

Lest anybody wonder whether Panax Corp. is for real need only look at the special Primary Election Edition distributed last week for an example.

It was a masterpiece — even outstriking the giant Detroit dailies as a significant journalistic contribution.

Most readers know it by now but for those who may not, Panax owns Associated Newspapers, which publishes the Wayne, Westland and Canton Eagles, and the Belleville Enterprise and Romulus Roman.

Under President John P. McGoff's leadership this fast-growing corporation has emerged as a "third media voice" in Michigan.

The superlative special primary edition, which included 150,000 copies in southeastern Michigan alone, attests to that.

In a few years, relatively speaking, McGoff has strung together a news network that boasts well over 30 daily and weekly newspapers in four states.

In addition, his holdings include a printing plant in South Africa, four printing firms in the United States and a television news gathering and distributing firm in Europe. He also owns the Sacramento (Calif.) Union. What all this means to the readers of Associated Newspapers is that they have at their doorsteps daily and weekly a news source that is capable of competing with the firmly established Detroit dailies.

The special primary edition was no small effort. It required teamwork from top to bottom, and especially during a hectic campaign weekend when every precious second counted. But Panax got the job done.

It was McGoff who arranged the interviews with President Ford and Ronald Reagan after awaking one morning at 3 a.m. with the "brilliant" idea. He also attempted to set up talks with "Mo" Udall, Jimmy Carter and George Wallace, but the Democratic candidates for president declined.

The interview with Reagan was completed on Friday, while the Ford interview was conducted on Saturday aboard the President's campaign train during an east-to-west whistle-stop tour through southcentral Michigan.

The writing of the special edition was wrapped up Saturday night and multiple page negatives were processed for immediate dispatch to printing plants in Mason, Mt. Pleasant, Alma, Mt. Clemens, Escanaba, Iron Mountain and Marquette. The tabloid was delivered to Panax readers on Monday.

The presidential primary preview included an endorsement of President Ford, an analysis of the primary campaign and a review of the issues involved.

It also included a personal letter from McGoff urging voter participation in our election process as a most appropriate way to mark the nation's Bicentennial.

And although Udall, Carter and Wallace could not or would not be interviewed, the special contained position statements and commentary on their current campaign efforts.

Panax plans more special election editions and may on occasion give similar focus to issues crying for comment.

The fact is, Panax has the resources and the know-how to do just that. With bureaus in Washington, D.C., and Lansing and the contributions of several nationally known political columnists, Panax can provide Associated Newspapers and its other properties with news articles, analyses and editorials that may take a different approach to a subject than the Detroit dailies.

Whether one agrees or disagrees with Panax treatment of certain issues is fine and dandy. The point is, the reader now is hearing from all sides.

We who work for Panax are equally amazed at Panax' meteoric rise to a plateau where it is becoming "noticed."

The proof that Panax has "arrived" could be seen last week in an Associated Press news article telling of the endorsement of President Ford by the Detroit Free Press, Detroit News and Panax Newspapers.

We who are Panax employees are proud of its contributions and excited over its future.

As Regional Vice-President Marty Heim pointed out last week, "Panax now stands out there where we should stand, as a newspaper group which carries impact!"

As we see it

County commissioner tilting at windmills

While we recognize that virtually every politician is at times guilty of some election year haranguing in his quest for votes, the first and most outstanding example we see now is from the county commissioner from Wayne County's 27th Commissioner District.

Royce C. Smith, we must point out, is seeking his second consecutive term on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners. And it has become apparent that one "issue" the commissioner will pick as the keynote for his campaign will be "fighting" the Federal Highway Administration for federal taxes to maintain county secondary roads in both his district and others throughout the nation which suffer for lack of money.

Smith is advocating diverting parts of the four cent per-gallon tax paid by all drivers to the Federal government for the Federal Highway Trust Fund into the coffers of Wayne County, and others across the nation in an effort to finance maintenance efforts on unpaved roads.

While we realize that his goals are excellent, since we, too, agree that the dirt roads in the 27th Commissioner District are largely "impassable quagmires" during the spring thaw, we don't approve of his proposed solution to the problem and suspect that it's nothing but election year noise.

Smith has been down at the county and involved in Belleville City government long enough to learn that the county roads he wants paved with federal funds are under the jurisdiction of the Wayne County Road Commission — an agency whose members are appointed by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

And, in the regular scheme of things, it would be the Wayne County Road Commission which should be attacked first in an effort to win rural residents of the county a "better shake" at highway maintenance.

But in an election year, it's extremely unwise for a Democratic office hopeful, even an incumbent, to attack the road commission, which is firmly entrenched in Democratic hands through county appointments and the machinations of the major unions in the Metropolitan Detroit area.

Instead, it is more fashionable to punch at the giant pillow of the "Federal Government," which is large enough, and cumbersome enough to absorb the blow, and still function as though nothing happened.

If Smith really were interested in his constituency, he'd start attempting to help it by fighting a little closer to home than Washington, and shouting about where the funds sent to the county road commission by the state for highway maintenance are spent, and why they aren't spent in his district.

But, again, it's an election year, and anything happens when it comes time to seek office.

If voters in the area deem Smith worthy of office in November for his one-man crusade against the federal government for highway trust fund monies for county roads, we only hope that the voters who approve of him for that track record keep tabs on what happens to the crusade after November.

Poetry Corner

Following are more poems by Belleville's Marge Lavery:

LONELY

The sun might be shining, the sky is clear and blue,
But this old heart is pining, for the man that was so true.

The days for me just don't seem right when hubby don't come home.
These sunny days just don't seem bright when you wander around alone.

You have your ups and have your downs and things don't go your way.
But when your hubby's not around it's just another day.

Lonely are the days and nights, and no one says I love you.
I don't think that it is right to be left so lonely and blue.

If I could only turn back time we'd enjoyed our life much more.
Instead of work to get a dime we'd sit and fish from the shore.

My wishes won't be delivered now and hubby will never come home.
If only he knew how I feel somehow,
so forsaken and all alone.

SWEET TALK TURNS SOUR

Don't give me all that sweet talk as I've heard it all before.
You want to take me for a walk and sweet talk me some more.

I don't believe a word you say,
those words are to snag me.
Sweet-talk words have made me pay for a good many years, you see.

You tell me this you tell me that,
'til I'd become your wife.
Then you'd never have time to chat and nothing would go right.

I'm sorry, but I can trust no man after all I've come through.
All they want is the upper hand and make your life so blue.

So, my friend, just leave my door.
I just can't see your way.
Don't try to sweet talk me no more,
'cause I am single to stay.

HE DOESN'T COMPLAIN

He stepped right in his daddy's shoes when his daddy passed away.
He said, "Don't worry mama, nothing will you lose."

"I will carry on with you each day and make your life worthwhile.
Just look up at me," he said,
'and give me your sweet smile."

My boy's a dream come true, and in my weary troubled days Without him now I'll tell you this old heart would break.

He says the sweetest words to me and sticks right by my side.
He looks at me so sweet and says,
'Oh, mama, please don't cry."

He pays the bills; he doesn't complain.
He takes me out to eat.
I have my world wrapped up in a son that's so great.

He comes home from work each night and helps me with the work.
God might have taken my husband but he blessed me with a son.

HE STILL NEEDS YOU

When he was small I watched him play, he was such a little guy.
He hurt himself at play one day and, oh, how hard he cried.

I picked him up and held him tight, and wiped his tears away.
Holding him close made every thing right and once again he was gay.

Now this boy is big and tall and handsome as he can be.
Too young to work is his downfall, so he burns the streets, you see.

His parents are always at a bar,
a home life he doesn't know.
He never knows where his parents are 'cause they're always on the go.

Children want their parents home.
They want to know they care.
Then on the streets they wouldn't roam and they've plenty of love to share.

MICHIGAN IS BEST

I was not born in this state, but came when I was young.
I learned to sing all the songs,
the little birds have sung.

I love the trees and waters wide, and the AuSable? Great!
I love to sit upon her banks and fish 'til I'm late.

I love the winters, soft and white, the summers warm and clear.
But best of all ... October frost, paints the picture of the year.

Tho' I was born in Dixie-land,
I've traveled East and West.
America is beautiful ... and Michigan is the best.

OUR STATE BIRD

Out in the orchard in an apple tree, that's where Robins made a nest, you see.

Made it careful of mud, dirt and clay, then lined it with grass, feathers and hay.

And when the nest was perfectly done, you could not have showed a better one.

Out in the orchard in the robins' nest there are four blue eggs under mother's breast.

They are blue, such a beautiful blue, the color that we all know is true.
The mother guards them with all her might,
she guards them all morning, noon and night.

Out in the orchard in an apple tree
there are four little birds, cute as can be.

They are so tiny, downy and nice,
I love them more than raisins and rice.
When their mother flies by their side they're sure to open their mouth up wide.

Out in the orchard it is sad to say, the robins have all flown far away.
It will be another half a year before the robins once more appear.
And when the robins come back once more
I will be more happy than before.

SECOND THOUGHT

In a far away land,
Where everything is glee,
I fell in love with a girl
That would always disagree.

I told her that I loved her,
She kicked me in the knee,
And said, "How could this be,
'We're not even the same pedigree."

But my dear, my dear,
Was my plea,
I'll even take you out
For a cup of tea.

But you must give me,
My own key
So I can take the car,
Said she.

On Tuesdays you must let me go,
On a shopping spree.
When I go,
You must agree.

When I heard this,
I became an absentee.
For I was smart,
I wanted to be free.

Political defeatism aids GOP decline

WASHINGTON — "There are just too many nuts in the Republican Party who don't give a damn about practical politics."

Thus did one "top Ford hand" interpret for Newsweek the President's defeat in Texas and Indiana. It is a useful and instructive quote — reflective of the quality of counsel and level of sophistication of the White House staff.

The same frame of mind seems manifest in Mr. Ford's reluctant decision to sign into law the latest rewrite of federal campaign reform. Despite Mr. Ford's "serious reservations" — which included his belief that it was anti-business, anti-Republican and unconstitutional — the President signed the bill.

Why? For three reasons, the "practical politics" boys explained to the national press. First, Congress might override our veto and what would that do to our image? Second, even if Congress failed to override, it would pass an even worse measure the next time. Third, if the President vetoed the measure, the press and the Democratic Congress would accuse him of starving out the campaign of the other candidates by freezing their federal matching funds. Thus persuaded, the President bowed before the blade and signed.

There is about each of these arguments a common denominator. They are the arguments of political defeatism; they help explain the decline of the GOP. The reason millions no longer stand as Republicans is that many Republicans no longer stand for anything but "practical politics." There are no more Tareyton smokers in the West Wing, the hole crowd would rather switch than fight.

But who in heaven's name are they afraid of? Carl Albert? A Congress whose approval rating hovers around 15 percent? Liberal commentators looking forward in anticipation to the return of liberal Democrats to the White House?

Has the Republican party no instinct left for self-preservation? This legislation was carefully crafted by Hill Democrats to do for the Republican party what John Dean had in mind doing for the first 20 names on his Enemies List. Consider what this latest "reform" entails.

First, it raises from $15,000 to $25,000 the amount our congressional heroes may earn annually on the lecture circuit — a critically needed reform. Second, it destroys the independence of the Federal Election Commission by giving both houses of this Democratic Congress veto power over FED decisions dealing with elections in which those very congressmen are involved. Third, it reverses an FEC ruling which put business and Big Labor on an equal footing, by depriving businessmen of the right to communicate freely with their employees for political contributions. Rather than swallow this "reform," the chairman of the FEC, a Ford Republican, quit his job. Ronald Reagan, who stood to suffer a serious loss if the measure were vetoed, urged a veto. Still, the President signed.

Do not the "practical politics" boys in the West Wing understand that the messages rolling loud and clear from presidential primaries are the need for leadership, and an end to those endless cave-ins and compromises?

The opportunity was there for Gerald Ford to steal a march on Ronald Reagan, and to firm up his increasingly fuzzy image as a decisive president.

He should have walked over to the press office and told the assembled reporters that there would be ice skating in hell before he signed into law a kowtow to George Meany, this handout to the congressional incumbents worried about the elections. Further, if brothers Udall, Church, Carter and Brown want their federal matching dollars, he would strongly advise them to convince their erring colleagues on Capitol Hill to send him nothing more than a reconstitution of the FEC.

And if not another dime went out to another candidate, or either party for its convention, why, that state of affairs was perfectly acceptable to Gerald R. Ford. Let the Congress howl. It would have been back to the drawing board within a week. And the only way Republicans are going to be able to convince this country they stand for something different, is to stand for something different.

There is nothing wrong with those Republican "nuts" out there, Mr. President. They are simply weary of the endless retreats, deals, compromises and cave-ins, counseled by the "practical politics" boys who have just about succeeded in stuffing you into the history books alongside Chet Arthur, the last GOP president dumped at his party's convention.

White House changes position on busing

WASHINGTON — "I make no such charge," asserted Senator Edward Brooke (R-Mass.), "that the decision is politically motivated. I would not tie it into how the President does in the primaries."

Brooke made this comment when he emerged from a hurried meeting with U.S. Attorney General Edward H. Levi to find out why the White House had suddenly switched its position on school busing the day before the Michigan primary.

Since Mr. Ford succeeded Richard Nixon his administration had supported court-ordered busing in cities like Boston. Then, without explanation, the administration leaked the story that he had ordered Attorney General Levi to "consider" joining Boston anti-busing advocates in a U.S. Supreme Court suit, and brazenly denied that it had anything to do with the Michigan or Kentucky primaries.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen piously insisted, when pressed by reporters, that "I have not doled out this information (on busing). I did not volunteer the story. I have done it in response to press questions. I don't like the implications I am orchestrating something."

The apparent fact that the Ford administration had to be the source of the story on the proposed anti-busing suit by the U.S. attorney general makes Nessen's and President Ford's denials all the more cynical fabrications.

Washington is long accustomed to such institutionalized political prevarication. What makes the entire affair an exercise in gross political opportunism and cynical manipulation is the justification for the switch hitting on busing by the Ford administration. It is being done, Mr. Ford contends, in order not to inflame passions and precipitate violence. The assumption being that court-ordered school busing, which the administration supported until the Michigan and Kentucky primaries, has not, in fact, been the source of all the violence and anger in Boston and Louisville!

The way for the Ford administration to have forestalled the violence it now claims it does not wish to inflame was to have opposed court-ordered busing in the first place. But it did not, out of the belief this would keep the pro-busing blacks, liberals and the media on friendly terms with the administration.

But with Ronald Reagan scoring one primary victory after another in recent weeks, the White House political types like Rogers Morton prevailed on the President to save his sinking ship in his home state where the busing issue is most volatile among blue-collar voters. Mr. Ford made the switch with the ease of putting on a fresh pair of socks.

In rude contrast, the position of former California Governor Reagan on the issue of school busing is significant and provides rare insight into the character of both Reagan and Ford. We have learned from aides that many within the Reagan organization pressured the GOP challenger to make a major issue of busing in Michigan. Reagan time and again refused.

"It was felt by the Governor," one top Reagan aide told this columnist, "that raising the issue of Ford's support of court-ordered busing in Michigan would have injected into the campaign an explosive issue that would more than likely get out of control and plunge the campaign into an irresponsible and emotional phase. The Governor just felt that what advantage might be gained in the political short-run would be offset in the long run by what it might do to the presidential campaign and the country."

The Ford administration's balderdash on busing is likely to bring about the very violence and bloodshed it claims it wishes to avoid. Having once switched positions on this issue, and on a great many others, it is likely that should the busing issue start to earn him a bad press, Mr. Ford may again betray his own word and change his political socks again, even if it does nothing to keep down the smell. If betrayed by the politicians once again on busing, the anti-busing forces might well emulate the blacks of the 1960's and start burning down school buildings and buses.

Primary post mortem

Local Republicans engineer Ford win

LANSING — A couple of post mortem thoughts on the Michigan presidential primary: The overwhelming vote here for President Ford showed why Gov. William G. Milliken has been able to win two terms as governor running in what were bad years for Republicans.

The vote came because the Ford campaign was run in the final 10 days by the Milliken organization. That organization is a broad one put together within the framework of the Republican Party. But it is a personal one tied to him rather than to any Republican candidate.

When the crunch came the four people who ran the Ford campaign here were State Party Chairman William McLaughlin, Ford Chairman Peter Fletcher, Milliken advisor Joyce Braithwaite and Jim De Francis, a key aide to Sen. Robert Griffin.

Griffin and Milliken work closely with each other and there is a Griffin ingredient in the organization, too, but it is primarily one put together under Milliken.

It knows the basics of a campaign — how to organize phone banks, how to get media coverage, how to send surrogate candidates around and get maximum exposure for them and, most importantly, how to deliver the vote.

What they did for Ford was what they have done in the past for Milliken and Griffin. The only difference was this time they only had a week, whereas with the others they've had a few months.

The results was an overwhelming Ford vote, something few had expected.

The team is not an interchangeable one, meaning it won't work for any candidate. If Milliken chose not to run again in 1978, it wouldn't automatically go to any Republican candidate, though as one person close to the top of the group said "The organization would find a candidate."

What the Ford vote shows is, that whoever the Democratic nominee is will have a long uphill road if Milliken does run.

Lost among the furor over the Ford-Reagan and Carter-Udall contests was the last chapter in the career of George Wallace as a national candidate.

The primary provided irrefutable proof George Wallace is finished on the national scene. He drew only 49,260 votes, seven percent of the total and not enough to garner any delegates from the state to the national convention.

The Wallace tide was turned, of course, earlier this year in Florida by Jimmy Carter. Wallace hasn't defeated Carter in any state, save Alabama. But Wallace still was pointing to the fact he had carried Michigan four years earlier as evidence he had a national following.

The vote also showed it takes more than organized labor support to carry even the Democratic primary, let alone a general election.

Carter managed to edge Udall by only 2,204 votes out of 610,000 cast for the two of them. That came despite all-out support for Carter by the United Auto Workers Union hierarchy.

Union members have become much more independent in recent years and the vote showed they can't be delivered as a bloc, at least not for Jimmy Carter.

Raffle prizes for 'Picnic Pops'

The Belleville Band Boosters are busy preparing for the annual outdoor band concert, "Picnic Pops," slated for June 5 from 1 to 6 p.m. at the Belleville High School athletic field. Mary Ann Bassett (left), club secretary, announces the addition of a raffle to this year's proceedings. In order to add to its coffers, the Boosters are selling tickets on a handmade doll house valued at $65.

Other prizes include a handmade doll titled "Emily" which was made by Lucille Clayton (center), a club member, and held by a smiling Quirk Road kindergarten, 6-year-old Pauline Ausec. Third and fourth place prizes will be a tennis racket and basketball. Tickets may be ordered from Mrs. Clayton at 697-7519 or may be purchased at the "Pops" concert.

St. Anthony's to celebrate pastor's silver anniversary

By LEESMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Final plans have been made for the big parish celebration which will honor the silver jubilee of The Rev. Raymond S. Skoney, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, on May 30.

Parishioners, relatives and friends of the honored priest expected to attend include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley B. Skoney who have been married 53 years, and who will also celebrate the 25th year of their daughter, Sister M. Alouque, as a religious.

Two brothers will also attend: Dr. and Mrs. Dan Skoney (DDS) of St. Clair Shores and their three children and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Skoney and their two children.

Jim Stimach, parish council president, and his wife Barbara, are handling arrangements for the festivities and announce that no further reservations are being accepted since they have reached a maximum for the facilities available.

The Rev. Skoney was born July 3, 1924 and was baptized at St. Hyacinth's Church in Detroit. He attended Our Lady Queen of Apostles grade school in Hamtramck and then went on to Boys' Catholic Central High School. After attending Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit for four years, he transferred to Sts. Cyril and Methodius Seminary at Orchard Lake. The late Edward Cardinal Mooney presided at his ordination on June 2, 1951, and the following day he celebrated his first solemn high mass at his childhood parish, Our Lady Queen of Apostles.

His first assignment as an assistant pastor was at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel in Wyandotte from 1951 to 1956. He subsequently served at St. Stanislaus, Corpus Christi and Holy Rosary parishes, all of Detroit, for the next nine years.

He next was given the duties of chaplain at Herman Keifer and Detroit Osteopathic Hospital from 1965 to 1969 and then was appointed pastor of St. Anthony's in 1969.

Active in archdiocesan programs he served for two years as vice-president of the Priests' Conference for Polish Affairs and for four years as High School Director of Sodality of Our Lady.

For 10 years, he gave his time as Archdiocesan Director of Christian Life Communities (CLC) and for four years was National Moderator of CLC.

He held a 1-year term as vice-president of The Health Care Chaplaincy Assoc. and was later elected president. He currently is Vicar of The Western Wayne Vicariate.

The parish celebration will commence with a concelebrated mass at 3 p.m. followed by dinner and dancing.

Retiring letter carrier feted at dinner party

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Some 53 employees of the Belleville Post Office, their spouses and guests, numbered 53 in all when they gathered May 19 in the banquet room of Vigo's Restaurant to say "so long" to a fellow worker.

Jerome Fay, a rural letter carrier for some 29 years, was the honored guest at a retirement dinner party planned by Ray Van Buhler and Scotty Grishaber. Ray also took the role of emcee and introduced members of the honoree's family — his wife, Sally, and their children, Gerald and Carol Zarembo of Romulus; Sandra Reichel, Jerome Fay and Patricia Fay, all of Belleville, and Joe and Lori Baumstark of Ypsilanti.

Other special guests were Jerome's fishing buddy and wife, Ed and Dorothy Kapelanski, and a former letter carrier (now retired) and his wife, Chet and Betty Thurston.

The after-dinner highlight of the evening was a "skit" centered on a daily occurrence at the post office (and strictly an inside joke) which involved a "club bundle" with Harry Wiley, Bob Whalen and Chet Thurston taking part.

Adding their farewells were Postmaster Raymond O'Neil who presented Jerome with a service award from the U.S. Postal Service; Assistant Postmaster George C. Wilson who gave a letter of commendation, and Donna Bieszk, postal clerk, who proposed a toast to the about-to-be-retiree and presented him with a gift certificate from the group.

Mrs. Fay was given the table centerpiece, a flowering plant.

MAY BUSY MONTH AT MILLER'S

Young Jeffrey Miller spent the first part of the month being the center of attention at his home. Right off, on the first of May, he received his first holy communion at St. Anthony's Catholic Church and afterwards was the guest of honor at a party given by his mom and dad, Kathy and Bob Miller of Edgedale Drive, Belleville.

Some 40 relatives and friends arrived from Dexter, Howell, Sterling Heights, Ypsilanti and Belleville and enjoyed a buffet lunch during the afternoon.

Then just two weeks later, Jeff marked his eighth birthday with five close friends, Garry Boyd of Belleville and Timmy Moore, Danny Fisher, Julian Moyer and Roger Inman, all of Ypsilanti. The quintet shared Jeff's May 14 birthday cake and ice cream and later unrolled their sleeping bags for an overnight stay followed by breakfast in the morning.

JUNE BRIDE-TO-BE FETED

Three of Donna Hall's aunts were responsible for the bridal shower luncheon May 8 which brought some 24 relatives into Romulus for the special occasion. Mrs. Mildred Hibner of Southgate, Mrs. Marianne Sulley of Livonia and Mrs. Ann Johnson served a salad buffet at the latter's home in Romulus complete with a cake made to resemble two intertwined wedding rings and bearing the inscription "With this ring" and "Donna and Mark."

Following lunch the women enjoyed an afternoon of progressive bunco with winners being Mrs. Mildred Lempe of Taylor, Mrs. Harriet Waverly of Plymouth, Mrs. Anne McPherson of Novi and Mrs. Betty Saunders of Jackson.

Donna opened her gifts which were arranged around a cluster of white turtle doves, bells and rings with assistance from two young cousins, Denise Sulley and Bonnie Waverly, who will be junior attendants in the June wedding.

Special guests at the party were Donna's grandmother, Mrs. Lillian Hintz who came in from Holiday, Fla. especially for the occasion; her mother, Mrs. Joanne Hall of Woodhaven, and her fiancé's mother and sister, Mrs. Isabel Zeigler and Mrs. Cathy Brown, both of Kalamazoo.

The wedding which will unite Donna and her fiancé, Mark Zeigler, will take place on the campus chapel at Michigan State University where the couple met and earned their respective bachelor degrees. Donna at one time attended Romulus Public Schools.

Money for music

South Junior High School again received a monetary gift from the "Crack Pot Squares." Mrs. Sue Thompson, (right) who with her husband, John, serve as leaders of the local square dance group, presented the funds to Earnest Robinson, South's vocal music director, to be used by the school in the vocal music area. The Crack Pot Squares are well known in the Van Buren area for their square dance activities. The group has met at South Junior High School for several years and recently held a special "appreciation dance" with the funds going to the school for various activities. Past gifts have been used to purchase flags and audio equipment for South.

Quotes worth quoting...

Benches for park

Students at Belleville South Junior High School have been busy constructing wooden athletic benches for use during the school's sports events. Made from scrap lumber, the five seats were built under the

Ford Wives Club holds installation

New officers for the Ford Wives Club were installed May 25 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Dearborn. The evening began with a dinner party in the Bugetti Suite followed by the installation ceremony and program at 8 p.m. in an adjoining room.

The following officers were installed: president, Margaret Fulton; vice-president, Dolores Hausch; and recording secretary, Virginia Turza, all of Dearborn; corresponding secretary, Mildred Raska of Dearborn Heights, and treasurer, Mae Weber of Southfield.

Entertainment was provided by the Farmington Hills Chapter of the Sweet Adelines.

The April meeting of the Ford Wives saw guest Patricia Burnett, well known portrait artist, feminist, world traveler and famed beauty, paint the portrait of club member, Dolores Savchetz, during the meeting. Ms.

Burnett explained her procedures in portrait painting, how she became the first woman artist at the Scarab Club and her commissions in the art world such as those of Betty Ford, Betty Friedman and Mario Thomas.

The fall programs are being planned and promise a variety of entertainment for members. For those interested in joining, contact the membership chairman at 278-9057 before September.

Phyllis Gray accepts gavel for ADK sorority

Twenty-one members were in attendance at the May meeting of the Alpha Delta Kappa (ADK) Sorority, Gamma Gamma Chapter, held at the home of Karen Smith on Savage Road, Belleville.

New officers installed for the 1976-77 year were Phyllis Gray, president; Sally Griffith, vice-president; Carrietta Post, treasurer; Roberta Kettler, corresponding secretary; Cynthia Coleman, recording secretary; Margery Ford, chaplain; Evelyn Larabell, sergeant at arms, and Leota Whalen, historian.

Standing committees and chairman for the ensuing year were also named. Carolyn Gay will head altruistics; Roberta Kettler, by-laws; Sally Griffith, programs and handbooks; Frances Stapleton, publicity; Leona Kozma, ways and means; Carrietta Post, budget and Marian Batzer and Anne Smith, pledge.

A Bicentennial art contest has been sponsored by the ADK sorority during the past season and posters have been submitted from Belleville High School, North and South Junior High Schools and the eight elementary schools in the Van Buren School District. A display of the winning works will be available to the public during the High School band concert May 23.

WMU prof speaker at co-op banquet

Over 200 people attended the eighth annual Romulus Senior High School co-op banquet May 11 at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The evening was highlighted by guest speaker, Charles A. Smith, associate professor of English at Western Michigan University (WMU).

Professor Smith, a noted humorist with a keen sense of timing, has written and conducted a weekly radio show which won both national and state awards.

He is the author of various articles and is a member of the International Platform Assoc. and the Mystery Writers of America.

A 1932 graduate of WMU, he received his master's degree at the University of Michigan (U-M) in 1937. He joined WMU's faculty in 1935 and also taught at U-M where he has taken extensive graduate work.

Anita Johnson, president of the office co-op club, BOEC, served as mistress of ceremonies. Willie Poole, a co-op student representing health occupations; Joel Carr, senior high principal and Al Sheffield, director of career and vocational education were also on the program.

The banquet offers students an opportunity to thank their bosses for assisting them in applying skills learned in school to the world of work. Many Romulus seniors participated in the co-op programs which are divided into four areas. Office education, Barbara Cornell, coordinator; health occupations, Bob Brock, coordinator and Connie Moore, technical aide; trade and industry, Dave Ferdon, coordinator, and distributive education, Mike Birmingham, coordinator.

Next year's programs are presently being set up for the school year. Any employer interested in a co-op student should contact one of the coordinators.

The co-op students appreciate the Romulus Community businesses and industries for their excellent support of a program of this type.

So the blind may see again and lives may be saved

CORNEA AND OTHER TRANSPLANTS
Medical science has perfected the techniques of transplanting organs, providing sight to many blind people and prolonging life to others — thanks to the magnanimous donations of vital organs for transplanting. Needless to say, there is an urgent need for organ donors.

Such humanitarian donations are the very essence of charity and love. While living donors, related to the patient, may be selected for kidney transplants, some organs which are not present in pairs must come from non-living donors. These organs, when removed immediately after death, function just as well as those from unrelated living donors.

You may have wondered if you could offer your own body and/or organs upon your death, yet you wished to conform to the traditions of full funeral service. Let me point out that in most cases the normal funeral customs and procedures may be observed. I would be glad to discuss this in confidence with you should you be interested.

One must give permission before organ donation arrangement can be completed. In the case of a relative who has died, the family, knowing of the relative's expressed opinions on the subject, may give permission. If you should decide to be a donor, you will be in good company. Over 10,000 corneal transplants have been made in the world and over 10,000 kidney transplants. There are some 120 medical centers in United States engaged in major transplantation programs with many thousands of patients awaiting such charitable contributions.

Study Club earns accolades at convention

At the annual convention of the Michigan State Federation of Women's Clubs held in Grand Rapids May 11-13, the Woman's Study Club of Belleville was awarded a check for $100 from the Cities Service Co. as the state winner in the Business for Beauty Contest. They will receive $1500 as the second place national winner when the General Federation of Women's Clubs convene in Philadelphia, Pa. June 18. Monies must be used for community beautification and the club will make the decision on its usage when it opens its fall season.

The Business for Beauty Contest was sponsored by the Cities Service Co. and the General Federation of Women's Clubs to help federated clubs encourage businesses to visually improve their establishments.

Mrs. Charles Patterson, Home Life Chairman for the Woman's Study Club, with the aid of her committee, made an intensive survey of the area, cited five businesses for significant improvement and chose Huron Valley Steel (HVS) as the local winner. A scrapbook, compiled detailing HVS's efforts and success, was submitted in competition.

The Woman's Study Club and the Junior Study Club also received checks at the state convention from the Sears, Roebuck Co. totaling $80 as first place winner in the Southeastern District and fourth place winner in the state for their Community Improvement Program. The clubs initiated the activity through the Belleville Bicentennial Committee and the Belleville Bicentennial Park Project to grade and landscape a narrow strip of city-owned land between High Street and Belleville Lake. They are serving as fund raisers to finance the project.

The Community Improvement Program is co-sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Sears, Roebuck and Co. It is designed to promote clubs to initiate programs within the community, utilizing community resources, involving various segments of the community for the betterment of the community.

The two clubs also won certificate awards for greatest cooperation between a junior and a general club.

Mrs. Charles Patterson of the Woman's Study Club earned an individual craft award for her knitting entry.

At the final meeting of the Woman's Study Club, a banquet held at Cantonese Village in Westland, the group installed its new officers for the 1976-77 club year.

Mrs. Floyd Griffith, vice-president, handled the ceremonies in the absence of Mrs. Don White who was attending the state convention in Grand Rapids, and who was installed president in absentia. Vice-president is Mrs. Lewis Paulsen; recording secretary, Mrs. William Szlinis; treasurer, Mrs. Darryl Raymond Jr. and corresponding secretary, Mrs. Fred Flavell.

Two members of long standing, Mrs. Richard Hamilton and Mrs. Andrew Krebs, were awarded life memberships.

Mrs. Lester Corzine reviewed the history of the General Federation of Women's Clubs with which the local club is affiliated.

BPW sends 16 to convention

More than 900 career women, including 16 members of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club (BPW) gathered in Southfield May 14-16 for the 58th annual convention of the Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Delegates heard Geraldine R. Eidsen of Fort Worth, Texas speak on the organization's 1976-77 program, "The Third Century." The new undertaking will emphasize the four objectives of the National Federation as guidelines for the BPW's total effort for the working woman.

Federation objectives are: to elevate the standards for women in business and professions; to promote the interests of business and professional women; to bring about a spirit of cooperation among business and professional women throughout the United States; to extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along the lines of industrial, scientific and vocational activities.

In her role as national representative to the meeting, Mrs. Eidsen also discussed other BPW activities, particularly the political action conferences and the foundation seminars which will be held around the nation starting in September.

She also reviewed the National Federation's current legislative platform, the operation of the "Talent Bank" which was organized to place women in top federal positions; and the 1976 national convention which will be held in Denver, Colo. July 25-29.

Pretty additions

Hannan Road Elementary School has been perked up with flowers planted by members of Brownie Troop No. 178 of Huron Township. As a salute to the nation's Bicentennial, the girls chose a red, white and blue color scheme for their blooms. School principal William Miller added a little green thumb experience as he assisted (from left) Cindy Hatto, Yvette Campeau and Michelle Coffee. The planting was but one of many service projects carried out by the troop during the school year.

Brownies add colorful blooms at local school

Brownie Troop No. 178 in Huron Township observed the nation's birthday by planting a Bicentennial garden May 18 in front of Hannan Road Elementary School consisting of flowers in colors matching those of the country's flag. This activity is one of the service projects which they have carried out during the school year.

Another recent project was the presentation of Easter bunnies which they made from wash cloths and soap, to residents of Apple Tree Lane Convalescent Center in Romulus.

The troop of 20 Hannan Road School students headed by Mrs. Janet Ison of Taylor and Mrs. Yvonne Campeau of Huron Township has had a busy year. Mrs. Annette Karafa of New Boston helped to make it so by presenting a cooking program to the group; Mrs. Helen Mullen of Huron Township assisted in sewing projects while Mrs. Raona Hardison of New Boston coordinated most of the craft activities. One of the girls' favorites was making ceramic bud vases as Mother's Day gifts.

Field trips were taken monthly. Among places visited were the Youthcenter at the Detroit Institute of Arts and Greenfield Village on an overnight stay. Recreational events included: sledding, ice skating and roller skating parties with the other troops in Huron Valley Girl Scout Cluster 10 of Huron Township.

Mrs. Gwen Gritz of New Boston is chairing the final event of the year, a picnic at Willow Metropark on June 1. In addition to a weiner roast, races and games will round out the program.

Don't flunk lunch, students

Can a student fail lunch? Yes, or rather the lunch can fail the student if the mid-day meal does not provide an adequate level of energy and nutrition to carry the youngster through the afternoon classes and after-school projects or play. A sound, nutritional lunch should provide at least one-third of the Recommended Dietary Allowances for children.

Including a serving of a park product in the lunch will fulfill many of the needs for high quality protein, B vitamins and other important nutrients. Completing the lunch with servings of fruits and vegetables, grains and dairy products will insure that lunch receives a "passing grade" and won't fail the student.

Seeks more federal money

Smith wages 1-man battle over roads

The county commissioner from Wayne County's western reaches is continuing his 1-man crusade with the federal government to obtain federal funds for paving county roads.

Commissioner Royce C. Smith (D-27th District), who will be seeking his second nomination for the county post this August, and, if successful, will seek re-election in November, met with three administrators from the Federal Highway Administration to lobby for more federal funds to improve poorly-maintained roads in the Belleville-Van Buren Township area.

Although the roads are the responsibility of the Wayne County Road Commission, Smith maintains that federal money should be pumped into either their upkeep or paving to prevent what he calls a "life-threatening situation."

Smith said residents who utilize the roads, which became "impassable quagmires" during the spring thaw, pay the same 4-cent per gallon federal tax that residents who live along paved roads pay."

"And yet, not one-cent of that money goes toward improving the roads that go to their homes, schools or place of work," Smith added. "We had people who simply couldn't leave their homes for necessary

'And yet not one cent of that money groceries, or school or doctor's appointments — because the spring rains turned these outlying roads into quagmires."

Smith said he is upset that the 4-cent per gallon federal portion of the tax goes mainly into building and maintaining interstate highways, such as the I-94 freeway, and state trunk lines, such as Michigan Avenue, while only a small portion goes into county primary roads.

Nothing is allocated from the federal highway trust fund for the maintenance of county secondary roads.

The secondary roads are the jurisdiction of the Wayne County Road Commission, which receives regular allotments of the remaining 5-cent per gallon tax on gasoline and money, based on population, from the weight tax paid for license plates each year for road maintenance and paving programs.

Smith met with Joseph Coupal, deputy administrator for federal highways, William Higgins, office of congressional liaison and William L. Mertz, associate administrator for planning for federal highways, to lobby for more federal funds at the county level.

"We're going to need a lot more pressure on federal officials to get a fair shake for all citizens who buy gas and feed the Washington coffers," Smith said. "The highway people are sympathetic, but sympathy doesn't pave roads."

While he admitted that the federal highway spokesman's promise to "take the request under advisement" is a step toward solving the problem, he added that the meeting didn't leave him "with a feeling of great optimism."

"Someway, somehow, these roads have got to be improved, and I'm not going to quit until they are," he said.

The commission is advocating a massive letter writing campaign to federal officials to let "federal officials know that all citizens who pay gas taxes deserve a fair return on their money in terms of road construction and maintenance."

WSU's College of Lifelong Learning offers classroom and travel studies

Western Wayne County residents can study in traditional classroom settings, combine travel with study, learn via television, or study independently this summer through Wayne State University's (WSU) College of Lifelong Learning (CLL).

Starting June 28, credit programs will be offered for the College of Engineering, College of Education, Division of Health and Physical Education, College of Liberal Arts, College of Nursing and University Courses in Adult Education (WSU-University of Michigan Extension Service).

The College of Engineering will offer credit courses at both undergraduate and graduate levels in chemical, metallurgical, civil, electrical and mechanical engineering. One week non-credit short courses for engineers and managers in reliability, product design and testing, water pollution control and civil engineering decision-making also will be offered.

The Division of Health and Physical Education has courses in dance, driver education, health education, health and recreation and park services.

Among the programs scheduled by the College of Liberal Arts are English Institutes in Ethnic Folklore, Afro-American Literature, Shakespeare and Linguistics, and for the Department of Family and Consumer Resources, 15 courses are planned in the child care, dietetic assistant and gerontology programs.

CLL's University Studies and Weekend College Program will give students the opportunity to learn through weekly workshops, daily television courses, and weekend conferences.

Students who want to work alone, pursue a challenging topic, and earn credit can choose from four independent study programs — "Britain and the Commonwealth: Disraeli and Gladstone," "American: America at Sea," "European: The Vatican" and "Slavic and Eastern European: The Road to Samarkand." Four hours of credit transferable to the College of Liberal Arts can be earned through each.

Those interested in traveling and studying in the United States or abroad have the option of going to Alaska, New York, Britain, France, Italy, or Scandinavia.

Bruce Becker, former member of Bat Sheva, Sally Bowden, former member of the Sanasardo Company, Anne Weaver Warren and Larry Warren, currently on faculty at the University of Maryland, will direct the 10th Summer Dance Workshop, to be offered by the University Courses in Adult Education.

A 4-hour credit course "The Nurse and the Individual" is scheduled by the College of Nursing, and the College of Education also will offer summer programs.

Course locations are the main campus in Detroit, WSU Southfield Center, 25610 West Eleven Mile Road, Southfield, Macomb Intermediate School Center, 44001 Garfield Road, Mount Clemens, and Boulding Middle School, 1970 Boulding, Troy.

Registration will continue through June 25. Requests for additional course information or registration materials should be directed to 358-2104.

Trelly fills seat on CUFA agency

Wayne County Commissioner John Trelly (D-Trenton) will join the board of Communities United for Action (CUFA), a state non-profit agency which supervises the funding of $1,600,000 a year for economically disadvantaged citizens.

His appointment, announced by Commission Chairman John Barr (D-Dearborn Heights) places Trelly on the 35-member board along with Commissioner Lee E. Flowers (D-Detroit).

CUFA directs anti-poverty programs in seven cities and one township — Ecorse, Hamtramck, Highland Park, Inkster, River Rouge, Romulus, Taylor and Sumpter Township. Seventy percent of its funding is federal and 30 percent is local.

"I am especially interested in getting involved in CUFA's Adult Work Experience Program. This provides the opportunity for 120 economically disadvantaged people aged 16 and above, who have either a limited work experience or none at all," Trelly explained. "These people are given a chance to work on a short-term, temporary basis with the goal of placing them in regular employment. This has been a very successful program. I would like to see it expanded."

One of CUFA's most valuable programs, according to Donald E. Wrench, executive director, has been the Senior Services Outreach Referral and Reassurance Program.

"Recently, we have been involved in the pre-certification of applicants for food stamps as a part of our Outreach Program," he said. "As a result of our involvement in this area, we have helped form food buying clubs, co-ops, which now serve 800 people."

IRS refund doesn't guarantee no audit of income tax return

Any Western Wayne County taxpayer receiving a federal income tax refund has no guarantee that his or her return will not be audited by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), the agency's district director has said.

"Some taxpayers mistakenly believe that receiving a federal tax refund means their return won't be audited," said R. L. Platte of the IRS. "Actually, a refund only guarantees that the initial processing of the return has been completed. Because it takes some time to process such large numbers of returns, an audit may not take place until several months after the refund check arrives."

Complete and orderly records can substantiate income or expense items and itemized deductions if the return is audited, Platte added in citing the advantages of keeping good records.

While the law does not specify the types of records the taxpayer should keep, Platte suggested that receipts, canceled checks, bills, and other written documents are helpful and retaining copies of the returns themselves also is beneficial.

The IRS District director advised that some records would be held even longer than the required three years. For example, property records should be kept for as long as they are useful in determining the basis of the original or replacement property.

For more information on recordkeeping requirements, taxpayers can order free IRS Publication No. 552, "Record-keeping requirements and a Guide to Tax Publications," by contacting their local IRS office.

Residents receive 'sheep skins'

Several residents of the Belleville-Romulus community have received their "sheep skins" from universities throughout the United States and the State of Michigan.

From Greenville, S.C., comes the announcement of the graduation of Mrs. John Numa Bright, the former Carol Jean Twigg of Belleville, who was awarded a bachelor of science degree in elementary education.

Mrs. Bright is the daughter of Paul Twigg of Rawsonville Road, Belleville, and Mrs. Dorothy Elliott of Decatur, Ill.

Romulus resident Edwin Sell of Pennsylvania Road, has been awarded with his degree in commercial floriculture from Michigan State University's Institute of Agricultural Technology. Sell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sell.

Club to host dog showing on June 13

The Alaskan Malamute Club of Greater Detroit Inc. will be sponsoring an American Kennel Club (AKC)-sanctioned B Conformation and Obedience Trial on June 13 at the American Legion Post 346 Hall in Farmington.

The match has three divisions in the Conformation class for junior puppies 2 to 4 months and 4 to 6 months, senior puppies for 6 to 9 months and 9 to 12 months and senior dogs 1 year and older.

Obedience classes will include sub-novice, novice A and B and graduate novice only.

The entry fee for each dog and his or her handler will be $2.50, with each additional entries for the same pet costing $2 each. General admission for the event is $1, with a charge of $1 for junior handlers and children under 5 admitted free.

The show is open to all Alaskan Malamutes, which are 2 months of age through adulthood and which have not won any major AKC points or are not American or Canadian champions.

The Junior Handling classes will be offered for children ages 8 through 12 years and 13 through 16 who never have won in junior competition and are showing a dog that is entered in one of the regular classes.

Wins at the match carry no AKC championship points or scores counted toward obedience titles.

Dogs entering the match must have an AKC litter or registration number and the animal's date of birth, breeder's name, sire and dam, owner's name and address and full planned or registered name of dog must be provided.

Judges for the competition will be Robert Bishop of Inkster in the conformation classes and Ron Govier of Richmond, Mich., in the obedience and junior handling classes.

Trophies and ribbons will be presented in all classes.

Show participants have been asked to groom their pets before coming to the match, since chalking and trimming will not be permitted in the building.

Registration for the program will open at 10 a.m. that day, with signups for the obedience trials to open at 10:45 a.m. The registration for the conformation classes will close at 12 p.m.

For further information on the match contact Dorothy Robinson, show chairman, at (313) 459-9809, Vickie DeWitt, show secretary, at (313) 937-2631 or 937-3423, or John Fotis, club president, at (313) 437-6039 or 437-1174.

State's parklands prepare for summer

Recreation areas gain improvements

Memorial Day weekend traditionally becomes the first-of-summer "community picnic" for hundreds of thousands of state residents who are expected to stream to Michigan's 79 state parks and recreation areas.

It's the long-weekend holiday period when warm-weather outdoor enthusiasts begin "their year" by taking that "exhilarating initial swim" in one of Michigan's 11,000-plus lakes or by unfolding the family tent after storage in mothballs during the past winter.

While hoping for fair skies statewide to usher in the summer parks season, the Department of Natural Resources says the dedication of one new park near Lansing and $1 million plus improvements at 29 areas in both peninsulas easily should boost the Memorial Day weekend attendance past last year's 3-day 450,000 estimate.

Andy Bierlein, acting parks division chief, said most of the development relates to construction of expanded campground facilities and installation of modern restroom and shower buildings.

Improvements in facilities at three areas stand out, Bierlein noted, referring to the official opening of the new 2,684-acre Sleepy Hollow State Park north of Lansing on Saturday, the almost completed $320,000 Fr. Marquette Memorial near St. Ignace; and a new boat concession service at historic Fort Wilkins near Copper Harbor, which will take visitors for the first time two miles out into Lake Superior to the Copper Harbor Lighthouse, oldest on the largest of the Great Lakes.

The park, which centers on man-made 412-acre Lake Ovid — named after a nearby community — was developed under a program designed to create lakes in areas where no natural waters exist.

Visitors to the recreational site will be able to swim, hike, bike, sail and picnic at no charge, since the park does not require an entrance permit. However, no motorized boats, fishing or overnight camping will be allowed.

The Fr. Marquette Memorial will be under construction through the summer and can be seen by visitors to the nearby Straits State Park, a 120-acre site with 322 camping units near the Mackinac Bridge.

Upper Peninsula parks undergoing changes are Baraga State Park, restroom-showers serving 75 families; Bewabic State Park at Crystal Falls, entrance road for a 144-unit campground; Muskallonge Lake State Park near Newberry, expanded campsites to 180 with restroom-shower facilities; Straits Park, restroom-shower building;

Tehquamenon Falls State Park near Paradise, boardwalk along the river's edge and an observation platform at the falls; Twin Lakes State Park near Winona, restroom building and picnic shelter; and Van Riper State Park near Champion, a boathouse on the shore of Lake Michigan.

In the northern Lower Peninsula the improvements include Aloha State Park near Cheboygan, expanded day-use parking; Cheboygan State Park, picnic shelter-restroom building adjacent to the Duncan Bay swimming beach; Leelanau State Park, new parking area and 42 sites in a "rustic campground;" Orchard Beach State Park near Manistee, new picnic shelter; and Wilson State Park, major landscape renovations and improvements to beach on Budd Lake.

In the southern Lower Peninsula the improvements include Fort Custer Recreation near Battle Creek, new horseback riding trails; Hayes State Park near Onsted, resurfaced all roads and parking areas; Highland Recreation Area near Milford, new day-use parking area; Holland State Park, shower-restroom facilities near the Lake Michigan campground; Holly Recreation Area, five restrooms, three picnic shelters, improved boat launch area on Valley Lake and 285-car parking area; and Ionia Recreation Area, new horseback riding trails.

Holiday traffic may set record

Booming car sales and a corresponding resurgence in consumer confidence should make the Memorial Day holiday the kickoff to a record year for tourism in Michigan.

"The Memorial Day weekend should be the state's best holiday ever with Michigan motorists expected to drive an estimated 710 million miles during the four days," said Joseph Ratke, Automobile Club of Michigan (AAA) touring manager. "Not since 1973 has the state surpassed the 700 million mile mark for that 4-day holiday."

"In pre-energy scare 1973, Michigan motorists drove 707 million miles over Memorial Day weekend."

Last year, they covered 660 million miles over the 78-hour weekend.

"Last year was a big travel year and so far this year, advance reservations throughout the state are up," Ratke noted. "Apparently there is no more fear about availability of energy and people are making plans and moving accordingly."

According to state tourist officials, inquiries about vacations in Michigan are running more than 49 percent ahead of last year. They say the massive Bicentennial effort is having a reverse effect on Michigan tourism—luring tourists to the state rather than away from it.

"Some people apparently have decided to delay their visits to Bicentennial areas until next year to avoid crowds," Ratke said. "Domestic air fares have increased again and this, too, is encouraging Michiganders to stay closer to home this year."

With Michigan motorists logging more miles than ever before this upcoming holiday weekend, AAA is using extra caution to stay the growing number of highway fatalities.

As of mid-May the state's traffic death toll was 10 percent ahead of the same time last year, marking the first-year an increase has been registered since the speed limit was lowered to 55 miles per hour.

Last year 28 persons were killed during the 78-hour Memorial Day holiday. Of the 35 drivers involved in fatal accidents that weekend, nearly two-thirds were less than 25 miles from home when the crash occurred.

Eager Beaver parents seek new 'home'

The participants in the Eager Beaver movement in Romulus still are in need of a "free" building to develop a recreational program for mentally handicapped youngsters in the community.

Persons in Romulus who may have a building they are willing to open for the Eager Beavers can contact either Geneva Clark, the group's organizer, at 941-9590, or a member of the Eager Beaver Parents.

The Eager Beaver Parents cooperate in running the program for their children.

Recently, the Eager Beavers have been holding activities at such locations as the Methodist Church of Romulus, the Romulus Community Schools, the Family and Neighborhood Services Center and the Romulus Civic League.

Mrs. Clark said she hoped the Eager Beavers can obtain a building to serve as their own home.

Arthritis: Symptoms ignored

An estimated 363 million people — 10 percent of the world's population — have arthritis. Of that figure, more than 50 million of its victims are American.

Despite the fact that arthritis strikes one in every 10 and one out of every four families, most people ignore the first signs of the disease when they should be hurrying to their physicians, according to the Michigan Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

"The initial response of too many people is to chalk up an aching joint to overwork or a touch of arthritis," said Dr. Ivan F. Duff, president of the chapter. "In either case they usually attempt self-medication."

The average victim of rheumatoid arthritis, the most crippling form of the more than 100 kinds of arthritis, may delay seeking medical attention up to four years after the initial onset of symptoms. Dr. Duff pointed out that aching and pain in joints can be symptoms of so many different arthritic diseases, all of which are chronic and progressive.

Arthritis literally means inflammation of a joint. Of the 100 now known, the most common are osteoarthritis — the mildest form usually affecting the elderly — and rheumatoid arthritis — one of the worst kinds which usually attacks people between the ages of 20 and 50, but can cripple even infants. Other forms include gout, ankylosing spondylitis, systemic lupus erythematosus (lupus or SLE) and rheumatic fever.

All told, arthritis affects one in four in America, and one in 10 is affected badly enough to require medical care.

With arthritis having the dubious distinction of being the nation's number one crippling disease, Dr. Duff said many people could prevent pain and disability by getting an early diagnosis and proper treatment.

"The warning signs can be vague," Duff cautioned. "Persistent pain, stiffness, or tenderness in one or more joints, especially in the lower back or knees, is enough to warrant a visit to a physician."

Other symptoms include a tingling sensation in the fingertips, hands or feet, unexplained weight loss, fever, weakness or fatigue.

"It is impossible for a patient to know if these symptoms have been caused by an unusual strain, arthritis, or some other disease," Duff added. A physician must conduct a general examination as well as X-rays and other tests to make a proper diagnosis. This is followed by an individualized treatment program which may include medication, special exercises, rest and other therapeutic measures.

Medical scientists still do not know the cause of arthritis, nor can they offer a cure, but proper medical care can alleviate pain and help prevent and correct crippling.

Dr. Duff warned arthritis victims to beware of quacks offering secret or quick cures for arthritis.

"Periodic remissions, when symptoms may subside spontaneously, make it easy for quacks to peddle their wares to arthritis sufferers," he said.

While the search for quick relief of pain is understandable, research has shown that only long-term treatment programs have any significant impact on the condition of an arthritis patient, he added.

The Michigan Chapter, Arthritis Foundation, an agency of the United Way of Michigan, sponsors numerous programs designed to keep patients informed about arthritis, educate medical personnel and sponsor research and training in arthritis.

During May — Arthritis Month — a special effort is being made to provide free literature to persons interested in arthritis. Booklets are available by writing to the Michigan Chapter, Arthritis Foundation, 23400 Michigan Avenue, Suite 605, Dearborn 48124, or by calling the chapter at (313) 561-9096.

Students receive degrees from UM

Several students from the Belleville-Romulus community have been awarded degrees from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor during commencement ceremonies held Saturday.

Collecting their "sheep skins" were Belleville residents Mariateresa Barzi of Church Street, bachelor of arts degree; Patrick Blahot of Carleton West, doctor of dental surgery; Kymberly Hattaway of Ryznar, bachelor of arts degree; William Jefferson of Village Green, master of arts degree; David Krause of Huron River Drive, bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering; Dennis Miller of Lake Pointe Boulevard, master of music degree; Joyce Webb of Haggerty Road, doctor of philosophy; Irene Woodbury of Ecorse Road, bachelor of science degree in education; and Paul Seal of Denton Road, bachelor of science degree in education.

The Romulus graduates were Linda Bradham of Cedar Grove, bachelor of arts degree; Giovanni Campagna of Riveroak Drive, master of science degree in engineering; Melvin Cross of Vinewood, master of architecture degree; John Janowiak of Whitehorn, bachelor of science degree in atmospheric and oceanic science; Gregory Stephens of Ecorse Road, bachelor of science degree in pharmacy; and Joel Richard of Chase, bachelor of science degree.

The main speaker for the commencement ceremony was the French Secretary of State, Francois Giroud.

Disabled vet could collect VA funding

Certain seriously disabled veterans may be eligible for a little-known Veterans Administration (VA) grant of up to $25,000 for specially adapted "wheelchair homes," the VA reminded Western Wayne County residents this week.

The grant can be applied toward a new home or used to remodel an existing dwelling, a VA spokesman said, or it can be used to help pay off the balance owing on a home the veteran has modified at his own expense.

Under the law, eligible veterans may receive a VA grant of not more than 50 percent of the cost of a specially adapted home up to the maximum of $25,000.

Only those veterans are eligible who have suffered permanent and total service-connected disability due to the loss (or loss of use) of both legs; blindness, plus loss of use of one leg; or other injury which prevents them from moving from place to place without the aid of a wheelchair, braces, crutches or canes.

Disabled veterans should consult their nearest VA office for more detailed eligibility requirements.

The law governing the wheelchair homes specifies that the veteran must be able to afford purchase of the housing unit, with the grant assistance, and it must be medically feasible for the veteran to reside there.

To qualify for the grant, the housing unit must have at least two wheelchair ramps located so as to avoid fire hazards, doorways at least 36 inches wide, hallways of at least 48 inches width, specially equipped bathrooms, specially located electric switches and outlets, an automatic smoke detector and other features.

How to buy a lawn mower.

1. Make sure the grass bag is mounted between the handles, so it trims close on both sides. You can mow anywhere, with no hang ups.
2. Check to see if it has a larger capacity grass bag that needs emptying less often.
3. Ask if it has vacuum action. A powerful suction that cleans your lawn as you mow.
4. Be certain the self-propelled mower has rear-wheel drive for greater traction. And automatic free-wheeling action for safer control.
5. Look for a tough, 6-speed transmission. For extra power and easy handling.
6. Now, if it has everything we've mentioned so far, buy it. It's a Snapper.

THE FINISH-IT-YOURSELF HOUSE™ FROM CAPP HOMES.

THE HOUSE YOU WANT—AT A PRICE YOU CAN AFFORD.

Finish-It-Yourself means just that. By doing some of the finishing work on your new dream home, you can save money. And those savings make your dream home possible — now. And you're buying more than savings... you're buying quality. Capp homes are custom-built by craftsmen who take pride in their work. And the result is something you'll take pride in for many years to come. Here's how it works.

YOU DECIDE WHERE TO LIVE
First, select the area where you'd like to live, then buy a nice piece of property. If you already own a lot, you're all set.

CUSTOM DESIGN YOUR FLOOR PLANS
Select from ramblers, split levels, split entries and two stories. You can customize any of our plans or, we'll build from your plans — to fit your family size, your way of living and your budget.

ONE-STOP SHOPPING
Capp provides you with the standard materials you need to complete a Finish-It-Yourself house. And not only do you choose plans, you also select roofing, siding, and all the interior features such as kitchen and bathroom accessories, doors, windows, flooring, lighting fixtures and so forth. You plan your new home exactly the way you want it to be.

WHAT WE DO
Capp custom-erects your home on your foundation, according to the plans and Capp Homes specifications. We install sub-flooring, interior partitions and exterior doors and windows. In short, your new home is enclosed and ready for the finishing you'll do.

WHAT YOU DO
After Capp does its part, you handle the finishing work yourself, or have someone to help. And you'll get the standard materials you need to complete your Finish-It-Yourself house from us. What's it like to finish a house yourself? Things like plumbing and wiring aren't all that tough. We give you instruction manuals to guide you, and you'll be surprised how fast you learn. But even if you hire people to help you, you'll still save by eliminating some of the general contractor's profits. However remember, the more you do, the more you can save. And when you're finished, not only will you have a home that's worth a lot more than you paid for it, you'll have a real feeling of accomplishment.

CAPP QUALITY — NO COMPROMISE
Capp doesn't compromise on quality. With our materials and building specifications, we maintain an old-fashioned dedication to quality. The fact is, we've been building homes for 30 years. And over 50,000 families are living comfortably in Capp homes today.

THE MORNING STAR
Featuring 3 bedrooms, 2 baths. Large living room and dining room form a gracious "L" with easy access to kitchen. You'll be proud to show it home.

Rambles from $17,370 to $54,000* and up.

THE VIRGINIAN
This beautiful 4-bedroom, 2 1/2 bath Colonial has room on the first floor for a den. Full-width living room with suggested fireplace covers one end of the first floor.

Two stories, splits from $17,340 to $63,000* and up.

FINANCING — WE CAN HELP
Capp Homes has financing sources... or you may use your own lender. Either way, your Capp Representative can make sure your new home fits your family's needs as well as your family's pocketbook.

THE AFFORDABLE HOME — NOW
Every aspect of the Finish-It-Yourself house is geared to make it possible for you to own a custom-built home. You make it affordable because you do the finishing. There's no compromise in quality either. You can save thousands by finishing your Capp home yourself, compared to the cost of having a general contractor custom-build the same house on your lot. Want to learn more?

THE NEW HOME IDEA BOOK FREE FOR THE ASKING
If the finish-it-yourself idea makes sense, call your Capp Representative today. His number is listed below. He'll give you our 96-page full color New Home Idea Book. Free. Or send us the coupon below and we'll mail it to you. It gives you all the details about the Finish-It-Yourself house and includes many exciting new models for 1976 which you can customize. Why wait any longer? Finish-It-Yourself makes your dream home affordable now.

*Prices shown are for the house, semi-constructed on the owner's lot and foundation and include materials to finish the interior. State and local taxes, landscaping, septic tanks, sidewalks, driveways, masonry work, brick, appliances and paint are not included.

Art Institute's exhibit looks at avant-garde

Impressive contributions of the Polish avant-garde to modern art history is being presented in "Constructivism in Poland, 1923-1938" at the Detroit Institute of Arts next Wednesday through July 11.

All loaned by the Museum Sztuki in Lodz, Poland, the 100 examples of sculpture, painting, photography and graphic design are survivors of World War II destruction.

"These rare works provide a missing chapter in the continuity of contemporary art," said Dr. John Hallmark Neff, the Art Institute's curator of Modern Art. "In the 1920s and 30s, Poland was the home of some of the most active and advanced artists in Europe. Sharing certain ideas with other vanguard artists in Russia, Germany, Holland and France, Polish Constructivists evolved a distinctive approach to the issue — how best to unify artistic and social ends within an organic whole appropriate to the realities of 20th century industrial society."

Their solution was an ideology of geometric order visible in the exhibition's "constructions" and paintings and meant to be applied ultimately to functional ends — architecture, typography, posters and theatre design.

Dominating the show are the works by Katarzyna Kobro (1898-1951) and her husband, Wladyslaw Strzeminski (1893-1952). Kobro is represented by more than a dozen compositions and constructions of metal, wood, plastic and glass; Strzeminski by 15 oil paintings, architectural and unistic compositions. Both were leaders of the Constructivist movement, being theorists, writers, teachers and organizers of exhibitions and schools.

Other artists in the show include Karol Hiller (1891-1939) who made photographs without a camera, which he called heliographic compositions, and Henryk Stazewski, now in his 80s, who continues to paint in his native Warsaw.

In addition to paintings, sculpture and photographs, examples of books and periodicals written and designed by the Polish constructivists show extraordinary inventiveness in typography and design.

The exhibition was organized by the Museum of Modern Art, New York and the Albright-Knox Art Gallery, Buffalo. It is presented in Detroit through a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

"Constructivism in Poland" is open to the public without charge in galleries 256-257 of the North Wing of the Detroit Institute of Arts during regular museum hours: 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday and from 1-9 p.m. Friday.

Ypsilanti man set for UM-D concert

Michael Gurt, 18-year old pianist from Ypsilanti, will present a concert at 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The free piano concert, which is sponsored by UM-D's Cultural Events Committee, will be held in the Sisson Room of Fair Lane Center, former home of Henry Ford.

The program will feature works by Beethoven, Liszt and Chopin.

Beethoven's Sonata in F Minor, op. 57, "Appassionata" and Liszt's Waltz from the opera "Faust" by Gounod will be two of the featured works.

Gurt, who began studying piano at age 10, has won several honors for his talent, including a Van Cliburn Scholarship to Interlochen and most recently the Dillman Scholarship to Eastern Michigan University.

Artrain opens tour with Monroe stop

Michigan Artrain Inc., a converted, 6-unit railroad train that houses an elaborate art exhibition, will celebrate the grand opening of its 1976 tour in Monroe June 2. Mrs. Helen Milliken, honorary chairwoman, will preside at the hour ceremony.

Artrain will locate in the center of Monroe at Loranger Square, on the corner of First and Washington streets, and remain there through June 8. It will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 12 to 8 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Morning hours are reserved for school groups.

In conjunction with Artrain's stay in Monroe, many activities will be occurring daily in the square adjoining the train site. Local artists will be working and displaying both in

State's south-central rivers cover 200 years of history

Three rivers flowing through south-central Michigan offer Western Wayne County canoeists an opportunity to view campus life, trace the path of French explorers and view patchwork farmlands.

The Grand, Red Cedar and Looking Glass rivers offer trips for both novice and expert canoeists ranging from a few hours to day-long excursions.

To explore the more than 200-year-old route of Indians and fur traders, canoe the Grand River, which today is lined by farms and small towns.

In the 1830s, Congress authorized construction of Grand River Road from Detroit all the way to the river's mouth at Grand Haven on Lake Michigan. However, the road does not closely follow the river, which rambles 185 miles along a crooked path through seven counties.

Since there are no riverside campgrounds along the 100 miles between Jackson and Portland, that section of the Grand River is best divided into short half-day and day-long trips.

A good place to start is two miles north of Jackson at Parnall Road Bridge. To reach either of two parks at Eaton Rapids takes nine hours. For those who want a shorter trip, Baldwin Park at Onondaga is two hours closer.

The only canoe livery between Jackson and Lansing is Grande Pointe Marina on Cretz Road in Dimondale.

Canoeing through the city of Lansing is for experts because of the many dams requiring portages. Less experienced canoeists should arrange ground transportation for the 4½ miles from Moores Park to Tecumseh Park in Lansing.

If possible, visit the State Capitol and Michigan Historical Museum, a replica of a colonial home.

The 12 miles between Lansing and Grand Ledge are noted for the scenery, especially the rock outcroppings for which Grand Ledge is named. Around the turn of the century, Grand Ledge was a popular resort area and tourists arrived by steamboat. As a Bicentennial project, a new gazebo band shell on Grand Ledge Island will house community activities and concerts.

A scenic trip for beginning canoeists starts at Delta Mills Park west of Lansing and passes by Grand Ledge to nearby Fitzgerald Park. Anyone preferring hiking to canoeing can take the 4½-mile foot path trail from the island near downtown to Fitzgerald Park.

Canoeists traveling between Grand Ledge and Portland will be able to see the Chief Okemos Burial Grounds. The Ottawa warrior was believed to be more than 100 years old when he died in 1858.

Canoeing on the Red Cedar, which flows through the Michigan State University campus in East Lansing, has long been popular among college students, but anyone can use the campus canoe shelter. The livery is open daily from 12 p.m. to 12 a.m. and rents canoes for 90 cents an hour.

With easy trips ranging from one to six hours, the Red Cedar is an ideal river for beginners. For the more ambitious, put in at Williamston below the dam and end the trip 11 miles downstream on the East Lansing campus.

Families should take the 2-hour round-trip from Michigan State University (MSU) to the county park on Okemos Road with picnic facilities and playground. On campus, visitors can see exhibits on Michigan history from the fur traders through turn-of-the-century farming at the MSU Museum and enjoy a stroll through the horticultural gardens and Beal-Garfield Botanic Gardens.

Other sites for put-ins and take-outs along the Red Cedar are just off M-43 at Zimmer Road, Dobie Road, Vanetta Bridge and Meridian Road County Park. Canoeers, however, should remember to use public access points and not to trespass on private property.

Views of old iron bridges and rural scenery highlight the Looking Glass, a good stream for pike and pan fishing. Canoeing is popular along the 30 miles between DeWitt and Portland, but very little takes place above M-27.

Canoes can be rented midway at Wacousta for $6 a day, plus $1.50, if the canoe is to be delivered to DeWitt or picked up at Portland. Both the DeWitt-Wacousta and Wacousta-Portland portions make interesting 4-hour trips with Looking Glass Valley Park in Wacousta and Portland City Park providing picnic and rest facilities.

The Looking Glass is a shallow river, ideal for beginners. It's a bottom-scraping trip at some points in mid-summer. There are no dams or rough water, but canoeists may have to portage, if a fallen tree blocks the way.

For detailed canoeing maps of the Grand River and its tributaries, write the Michigan Grand River Watershed Council, 3322 W. Michigan Avenue, Lansing 48917.

2 church choruses to present musical

The combined chorus of the Bethany Baptist Church of Belleville and the Calvary Baptist Church of Ypsilanti will be presenting a Bicentennial musical, entitled "I Love America".

The joint performance is scheduled for 7 p.m. June 4 and 5 at the Calvary Baptist Church, 1007 Ecorse Road, Ypsilanti.

Admission to the concert is free.

The musical will be accompanied by an orchestra sound track, a color slide presentation during patriotic numbers, a color guard from the U.S. armed services and "flag waving" American youths.

The Rev. Elvin Mattison is the featured tenor soloist in the presentation. He is the former pastor of Calvary Baptist Church.

Robert A. Welch, Calvary congregation, music director of the will direct the show.

What to do about those unsightly, rust-breeding chips in the paint on your car? They are easily touched up with a can of matching color paint, available at any auto supply store. Fill deep chips with "body solder," sold in paste and applied with a putty knife. Let dry and then sand smooth with fine (200 grit) wet-or-dry sandpaper. Cut a hole in a piece of cardboard, slightly larger than the area to be touched up, and spray the matching color paint through the hole. Repeat this operation five or six times, to build up the paint thickness, without causing runs.

Materials to fix rust-spots on your foreign or domestic cars are available at KOSIN'S AUTO PARTS, 26831 Michigan, Inkster. We carry everything your car needs to run smoothly and efficiently, and to look clean and attractive! We specialize in parts for Datsun, Toyota, Fiat, Opel, Volkswagen, and other foreign cars, as well as all parts for domestic cars. Stop in for the tools and equipment you need. Ask about our complete machine shop repair service! Our friendly and knowledgeable staff will be happy to help you select the parts to repair your particular car. Call us at 563-3894. We are open daily from 8 A.M. until 8 P.M., Saturdays until 5 P.M.

AUTO FACT: Wax the entire panel to render the touch up invisible.

Michigan in the Revolutionary War

Regiment involved in Lexington-Concord

The British garrisons at Forts Detroit and Michilimackinac had more to do with the start of the Revolutionary War than state residents may think, and this week's portion of the Department of Natural Resources special Bicentennial series, David A. Armour, assistant superintendent of the Mackinac Island State Park Commission, looks at the 10th Regiment of Foot's involvement in the colonial uprising.

Early on the morning of April 19, 1775, a column of British regular soldiers marched onto the village square of a little community in the colony of Massachusetts.

Drawn up on the opposite side of that 2-acre Lexington green was a thin line of Colonial Militiamen. British Major John Pitcairn halted his Redcoats and called on the Americans to disperse.

People began to move about. There was some shouting. Suddenly, a shot rang out and immediately smoke covered the field as the British regulars and colonials exchanged blasts of musket fire. There were more shouts and people began to run.

As the smoke began to clear, there on the green lay eight colonialists, all dead. One Redcoat had been wounded slightly in the leg. No one was certain who fired that first shot, but it really didn't matter.

The Revolution had begun. Among the British soldiers who took part in the events of that fateful day were a number of men of the 10th Regiment of Foot, an infantry unit of the regular British army. Only a few months before, the men of this regiment had been stationed on the upper Great Lakes, some having garrisoned the Empire's outposts at Fort Detroit and Fort Michilimackinac.

Quickly dispersing the American militia at Lexington, the British troops, led by Lt. Col. Francis Smith of the 10th Infantry, marched on to Concord where they planned to destroy a quantity of military supplies collected by the colonists.

Parts of several British regiments had left Boston secretly in the middle of the night, hoping to surprise the Americans at Concord 20 miles away. But the whole countryside was in an uproar over recent moves by Parliament and surprise soon turned against the British.

Alerted by Paul Revere and other night riders, and by alarm bells and gunfire echoing through the night, the British regulars who had moved on to Concord soon found themselves facing an armed and ugly-tempered force of rag-tag militia at Concord Bridge. They succeeded in destroying the colonists' supplies, but quickly found themselves engaged in a small arms battle.

One officer who had been stationed in Michigan, a Lt. Kelly, was severely wounded, and when recall sounded, the British regulars were more than willing to turn back toward their garrisons at Boston. The colonists pressed their attack, however, and on that day anchored some brutal memories in the minds of the Redcoats.

All day, a galling musket fire peppered the line of British regulars as they trudged back to Boston. Fortunately for them, the Americans lurking behind stone fences and trees proved poor shots — despite all those stories about their great marksmanship. Had they better aim, the British troops soon would have been decimated. As it was, however, American musket balls did thin the stoical line of retreating Redcoats.

The soldiers of the British 10th were all professionals. Dressed in bright red coats with bright yellow facings, they made easy targets. Those colors were designed, however, to make friend recognizable from foe in the thick of smoke-choked battlefields where the enemy might be only a few yards away.

British soldiers, armed with their ponderous 14-pound "Brown Bess" flintlocks, fired a ball nearly three-fourths of an inch in diameter — the size of a large marble. Though these weapons were muzzle loaders, the soldiers were trained to fire two to three times each minute, and that made them formidable opponents. Harsh and steady discipline turned the British regular into a virtual military robot, able to withstand an enemy's fire without flinching while continuing to load and fire almost mechanically.

When lines closed for hand-to-hand combat, a 14-inch bayonet was fixed to the end of the muzzle. Cold steel ended many of the 18th Century's bloody battles. All this the British Redcoat did for 8 pence a day, less deductions for food and clothing.

Slogging back toward Boston, harassed by gunfire, unable to stop for rest, the men of the 10th must have recalled many visions of their lovely Lincolnshire in northwest England from which so many had come.

Many must have wondered, too, whether they would ever see that peaceful land again. As events continued to unfold in the Colonies, very few of them ever would return to their homes. For the men of the 10th, in fact, the timing of that first shot at Lexington couldn't have been worse.

When they left their posts on the upper Great Lakes during the summer of 1774, they thought they were on their way back to England. After spending two years in the routines of frontier garrison duty, they had received orders to return.

Maj. Henry Bassett, commandant at Detroit, and Capt. John Vattas, commandant at Michilimackinac, were happy to leave those isolated posts on the farthest edges of the British Empire.

Vattas had had an active command at Michilimackinac where he erected the King's Storehouse and replaced 800 pickets around the stockade. His men worked to repair the fort with more than ordinary zeal; rumors swept the frontier almost weekly that Indians were on their way to surprise and capture the fort — as they had done 10 years earlier in 1763. The murder of several lone traders in the region only heightened the British worries.

Bassett at Detroit also was fearful of Indian attack and steadily concerned by the general ill health of his soldiers. The western country seemed such a desolate place. Even British dreams of mining a fortune in copper along the south shore of Lake Superior had come to naught in 1773.

Thus, when Vattas received a letter from his Commander in Chief, Gen. Thomas Gage, dated Dec. 26, 1773, informing him that "your Regiment is to be sent to England next summer, and that the relief will take place as early in the season as the navigation of the lakes will permit," he let out whoops of happiness.

When the summer of 1774 arrived, true to the British plan, the King's Eighth Regiment replaced the 10th as the Empire's troops in Michigan. The Eighth, in fact, remained in Michigan throughout the entire Revolutionary period, while the men of the 10th sailed east along the lakes toward their bloody destiny. Having been scattered at several posts along the frontier, the 477 men of the 10th finally assembled at Quebec.

They came from Michilimackinac, Detroit, Niagara, and Fort Erie, and all were happy to be going home.

But instead of boarding ship for England, they found that "due to disturbances in Boston," they were not going to England after all.

One soldier wrote home on Sept.

20, 1774: "Having just got settled in quarters, arrived an express from Boston with order for the 10th and the 52nd Regiments to embark immediately for Boston on the arrival of transports which are on their way for this place and hourly expected ... Accordingly, on the 6th October we embarked and on the 8th set sail. We had a very rough passage, as naturally would be expected at that season of the year." They arrived in Boston on Nov. 3, but stayed on their cramped boats until the 27th.

Back at Michilimackinac, the outbreak of the Revolution produced little immediate effect. While the men of its former garrison were being shot to pieces on the Concord road, and later suffering slow death in Boston, their replacements at Michilimackinac hardly were aware that a war had started.

For all they knew, the rebellion seemed only a bit of trouble stirred up by a few radical colonists.

Not until July 4, 1776, when all 13 colonies proclaimed their independence, did the inhabitants at Michilimackinac begin to realize what might lie ahead. Not that they would suffer much violent action out here in the wilderness. On the contrary, throughout the years of the American Revolution, the area which is now Michigan remained staunchly loyal to the English crown.

Yet, the rebellion which engulfed the soldiers of the 10th on April 19, 1775, eventually also swallowed up Michigan too.

At the peace settlement in Paris in January 1783, which ended hostilities of the Revolution and recognized the independence of the United States, Detroit and Michilimackinac were included in the new nation. By the stroke of a pen, Michigan died British and was born American.

Thus, that rattle of shots fired on the green in Lexington by soldiers of the 10th British Regiment eventually caused the Stars and Stripes to replace the Union Jack on the flagpoles of Detroit and Michilimackinac.

Tuna and noodles, spaghetti are cafeterias' bills of fare

Students in the Van Buren and Lincoln Consolidated School districts will have Monday off, but will return to school on Tuesday with cafeteria offerings of tuna and noodles, Italian spaghetti and sloppy joes.

In the Van Buren elementary schools the lineup Tuesday will be sloppy joes on buns, juice, french fries, cookies, fruit and milk, followed by juice, pizza, tossed salad, cole slaw or vegetable, pudding and milk next Wednesday.

Next Thursday the bill of fare will be spaghetti with meat sauce, bread and butter, vegetable, watermelon and milk, while capping the week will be a lineup of soup, fishwich on buns, tator tots, fruit Jell-O, cookies and milk.

In the junior and senior high schools the cafeterias Tuesday will be serving Italian spaghetti with meat sauce, green beans, bread and butter, pudding and milk, followed by juice, sloppy joes on buns, potato chips, fruit, cake and milk next Wednesday.

Next Thursday the cafeteria menu will include fried chicken with potatoes and gravy, cranberry sauce, vegetable, bread and butter, watermelon and milk, while rounding out the last full week of school will be a menu of soup fishwich, potato chips, cole slaw, cookies and milk.

The B menu selection will be Coney Island foot-longs Monday, pizza in the senior high and the Belleville burger in the junior highs next Wednesday, Belleville burgers with cheese next Thursday and double burgers with cheese next Friday.

In the Lincoln Consolidated School District the menu Tuesday will be tuna and noodles, tossed salad, hot rolls, chilled fruit and milk, with vegetable soup, peanut butter sandwiches, apple crisp and milk slated for next Wednesday.

Next Thursday the bill of fare will be submarine sandwiches, with side dishes of buttered vegetables, cake and milk. At East Elementary School the main entree, however, will be beans with hot dog slices.

Topping the week will be a menu of fish on buns, tator tots, cole slaw, ice cream and milk.

Garden plots are available

Area residents are welcome to sign up for free garden plots which will be made available by the Trinity Episcopal Church of Belleville.

Plots will be plowed by church members on a vacant lot between the church, located on Belleville Road just south of the I-94 freeway, and the church rectory.

Information on the plots can be obtained between now and Friday by calling either 697-8373 or 699-3361.

Realtors join tax-limit push

Realtors from throughout the metropolitan area are taking a leading role in giving voters this fall a direct voice in their total tax bill.

Gathering support throughout the state, a petition drive is underway to place on the ballot a proposed tax limitation amendment to the State Constitution. Provisions would prohibit state revenues from exceeding 8.3 percent of collective personal income in the preceding fiscal year.

"We know that property owners, both present and prospective, are being caught in a trap of spiraling price increases and greater tax demands," said Theodore Zukosky, president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCB).

"As a result, they are being increasingly limited in housing choices, with many being forced out of the market entirely, and others unable to make desired moves. We hear their demands first-hand that something be done and think the proposed amendment is a step in the right direction," he added.

He said all member offices of the WWOCB now have been furnished with copies of petitions and are inviting all registered voters to stop in to sign them. Additional copies of the petition for circulation by interested persons also are available from the offices, by calling the WWOCB at 478-1700 or through other local boards.

"Our analysis of the proposal indicates the amendment would be in the best interest of property owners whom we feel are among those hit hardest by present state tax policies," Zukosky said. "Provisions offer the state protection in time of emergency conditions and at the same time provides safeguards for local units of government. If the state exceeds the limit, it is required to make a pro rata tax refund."

The petition was initiated by a Lansing-based citizen organization, Taxpayers United, and the drive is receiving support from a number of diverse organizations including the Michigan Association of Realtors. Some 50,000 signatures already have been collected.

"We think passage of the amendment will encourage industrial growth in the state and help reverse the trend of diminishing production jobs," Zukosky said. "An improved business climate will mean that total personal income within the state will increase and, even with the limitation, government will receive more funds for maintaining and expanding needed services."

Michigan could become the first state to pass such an amendment if the drive succeeds, and the chances appear good, according to several authorities. However, similar drives are underway in a number of other states and are being considered in several more.

Spokesmen for the National Tax Limitation Committee have said positive action by the states is needed before a successful drive can be mounted to limit federal taxes. A limiting measure has been introduced in Congress but chances for serious consideration appear remote, say the experts.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT OF BELLEVILLE'S COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT ACTIVITIES UNDER

Block Grant Program

The City of Belleville finds that the proposed activities planned under the Block Grant Program - 2nd year funding will have no significant impact on the environment - noise, air, water, wildlife or historical. These activities are: 1. Acquisition of property. 2. Replace pipe in water system. 3. Traffic light. 4. Sidewalk curb cuts. 5. Housing assistance plan. 6 Urban renewal close-out. Based on these findings, no further review of the project is planned and the applicant will request release of funds after approval of the application.

The applicant has an environmental review record on file with the Office of the City Clerk, 6 Main St., Belleville, Michigan, for review by interested parties between 8:00 A.M. and 5:00 P.M. Monday through Friday until June 11, 1976.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, municipal government, in order to best serve the needs of the citizenry, must be operated with efficiency and in an orderly manner; and

WHEREAS, the efficiency and order with which government carries out its public functions is strongly reliant on procedures and records; and

WHEREAS, the Municipal Clerks administer the procedures and keep the records; and

WHEREAS, an organized source of knowledge about a community and its government activities is vital to the smooth governing of that municipality; and

WHEREAS, the Municipal Clerks provide and maintain such a body of knowledge; and

WHEREAS, the strength of local government depends upon the citizens' opinion of it, and such opinion is formed largely by the image set forth by the municipal government employees; and

WHEREAS, the Municipal Clerk is the municipal official most closely in daily contact with the citizenry, and therefore is a key position to mold sound public opinion; and

WHEREAS, during our Bicentennial Observance, it is most appropriate that we recognize an historic municipal office which grew out of the traditions of our democratic heritage.

NOW, THEREFORE, the Romulus City Council does hereby proclaim the week of May 10 through May 14, 1976, as MUNICIPAL CLERK'S WEEK in recognition of the vital services they perform and their outstanding dedication to the communities they represent.

Area reaps 4 regional track champs

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Four area athletes captured gold medals in state regionals held at Ypsilanti and Clarenceville on Saturday.

The regional champs: Ted Unold (Westland John Glenn), Dave Kielty (Livonia Churchill), Chuck Ronan (Livonia Franklin) and Herm Thompson (Cherry Hill) will lead a more than 30-man delegation to the state finals.

The Class A state finals will be held at Houseman Field, Grand Rapids, while the Class B championships are set for Okemos. They'll be staged on June 5.

Unold captured the Class A regional title in the mile as he won at the wire with a 4:20.1 finish, beating Adrian's Bill Hielknen in a "photo finish". Hielknen's time was posted at 4:20.15.

Kielty, a sophomore, captured the gold medal in the newest prep field event, the discus. His toss of 145 feet, 3 inches established the regional mark at Ypsilanti. The winning toss, however, fell short of Kielty's personal best for the season. He has thrown the discus 152 feet, 10 inches.

Ronan, a senior, hit the wire first for the half-mile, touring the distance in 1:56.4.

Thompson cleared 6 feet, 4 inches to win the Class B high jump title at Clarenceville. He led Coach Joe Grasley's Spartans to a third place over-all finish. U of D High won the regional title at Clarenceville with 45 points, one more than runner-up Darborn Heights Robichaud.

Cherry Hill garnered 25½ points in its first Class B track & field regional appearance over. The Spartans had been competing as a Class A school since 1962.

Cherry Hill also placed second with Bill Johnson in the 880-yard run (1:56.5) and the mile with Mark Hagedorn (4:33.7). Paul Centkowski was runner-up in the long jump (20 feet, 4 inches).

Host Ypsilanti, with 51 points, took the Class A regional, beating Adrian by 20 points. Jackson Parkside was third (29), followed by Livonia Churchill (22), Westland John Glenn (20), Jackson (19½), Livonia Franklin (16), Ann Arbor Huron (15½), Annapolis (14), Ann Arbor Pioneer (11), Garden City West (11), Wayne Memorial (7), Bedford Temperance (4), Plymouth Salem (3) and Belleville (3).

Churchill also had the third best discus man at Ypsilanti with Mark DeWitt who had a 137 feet, 4 inch toss. Coach Fred Price's Thinclads also qualified sophomore Rich Austin in the high hurdles (14.8), who placed third; Vic DeFlorio, who placed third in the 40-yard dash (51.0), and Brian Hana, a third place finisher in the low-hurdles (20.4).

Hanna missed qualifying in the highs when he came in fourth (14.9). Glenn's regional delegation also will be made up of Terry Bixler, who placed third in the 220-yard dash with a time of 23.1; the mile relay team of Cliff Williamson, Dave Johnson, Kelly Frost and Jeff Couturier, also third (3:26.3).

Though he placed sixth, Kirk Cretal's 9:57.1 was a personal best in the 2-mile run.

Wayne Memorial will be represented at the regional by Brett Hansen who was runner-up on the high hurdles. Hansen ran 14.4 in the semi-finals and in the finals had a 5-yard lead when he stumbled over the last hurdle and finished second, (14.8). Teammate Rick Blaha broke the Wayne sophomore record in the 2-mile, (9:52.6). He finished sixth.

Ronan will be joined at the state meet by teammates Dave Smith, Jim Boldt, Larry Action and Jim Casey, who placed third in the 440-yard relay (44.4) as well as the 880-yard relay team of Smith, John Sames, Action and Casey at the state finals.

Coach Bob Holes missed qualifying his third relay team-the mile - when it finished fourth. That team of Sames, Phil Frusti, Clint Hall and Ronan was clocked in 3:26.6.

Glenn wins regional title

Scoring 17 points, Westland John Glenn captured its first Class A regional tennis championship in the school's 11-year history.

Coach Don Alrich's Rockets also won the doubles' title in qualifying for the state finals which will be held June 4-5 in Kalamazoo.

"I'm just thrilled," said Aldrich whose team also is eyeing its first Northwest Suburban Conference title. "The regional title was the efforts of the entire team. The boys did a tremendous job."

It was an all Glenn doubles' finals as sophomore Pat McBride and teammate Gary White defeated Chris Kaczor and Leroy Blivens 5-7, 6-3 and 7-6.

The singles' title went to Garden City West's Rick Gwizdz who turned back Livonia Churchill's Fred Bayoff 6-4 and 6-1.

Gwizdz ousted Glenn's Dave Terwilliger in the semi-final round 6-3 and 6-4. Ralph Calbido also contributed a pint to Glenn's cause by winning his first pitch 6-7, 6-3 and 6-4.

Glenn's Mark Miller and Jack Henderson made it to the quarter-finals before losing to the Bishop Borgess' team 7-5, 3-6, 6-3.

Livonia Churchill finished second at the regionals hosted by Glenn on Saturday. Churchill had 10 points while Bergess and Garden City West were tied for third with seven points each, followed by Wayne Memorial (6), Livonia Bentley (6), Thurston (4), Crestwood (3), Garden City East (2) and Livonia Franklin (0).

Area Class B teams didn't fare as well in Dearborn. Grosse Ile, with 20 points and both the singles' (Mike Rose) and doubles' champs captured the title.

Cherry Hill shared the No. 2 spot with Darborn Heights Riverside. Each had 12 points while Inkster and Riverview each had 11 and finished in a 2-way tie for fourth.

Frustrating Day

Though she has cleared 5 feet, 7 inches several times during the course of the regular season, Wayne Memorial's Lisa Nibert had her problems at the Class A regional girls track & field championship held at Ypsilanti on Saturday. The Wayne sophomore finished second, ending the day with a silver medal thanks to a 5 feet, 2 inches' leap.

Wayne's Miss Berry wins regional title

Unheralded Debbie Berry captured a gold medal at the annual Class A Regional track and field championships held at Ypsilanti on Saturday.

The Wayne Memorial senior leaped 16 feet, 11 inches to place first and to help her teammates to an over-all sixth place finish in a field of 18.

Miss Berry also placed third in the 220-yard dash. She was clocked in 26.1.

Coach Floyd Carter had three other medalists. They are Lisa Nibert, Ann Swires and Jill Shackelford.

Miss Nibert, a sophomore, finished second in the high jump competition. A sophomore who has successfully negotiated 5 feet, 7 inches this season, Lisa had her problems and was forced to settle for a silver medal after ending the day with a 5 feet, 2 inch effort.

Miss Shackelford was second in the 110-yard low hurdles as she covered the distance in 15.4, while Miss Swires posted a 2:28.0 for the half-mile, the third best time for the event at the regional.

The four girls will travel to Lasher in Bloomfield Hills on June 5 to compete in the Class A finals.

The anticipated showdown between unbeaten Wayne Memorial and Fordson for the Great Lakes 8 Conference girls' track lead didn't materialize last Thursday as Wayne won an easy 74-40 decision.

That victory placed Coach Floyd Carter's Zebras in the driver's seat of the title express. If Wayne can finish ahead of Fordson at the league meet it will win its first girls' track championship ever.

Wayne is sporting a 6-0 league record.

And that's a complete "about-turn" of a year ago when Wayne won only one league meet and finished fifth in a field of six teams.

What turned things around for the Zebras? Carter explained: "I feel it was a lot of hard work on the part of these girls. The ability obviously was there, also, I feel that the inclusion of three sophomores on this team helped in terms of getting the points."

The league meet was to be held Tuesday at Wayndotte.

Wayne captured 12 of the 14 events against Fordson, losing only the 880-yard relay and the mile run. Debbie Berry accounted for three Wayne first places while teammate Diane Kasper picked up two.

Miss Berry won the long jump in a leap of 17 feet, 3 inches and ran a 11.7 in winning the 100-yard dash. She hit the wire first in the 220-yard dash, churning out a 26.9 for her victory.

Miss Kasper and Lori Sheridan provided Wayne with a 1-2 finish in the shot put. Miss Kasper's toss of 31 feet, 10½ inches was the top performance. She came back to win the discus on a toss of 84 feet, 5½ inches.

Wayne's Lisa Nibert continued to look good in the high jump. The 14-year-old sophomore cleared 5 feet, 7 inches to finish first.

Trout lakes are here to stay — Anglers who pass them up in favor of traditional trout streams all the time are missing some of the most exciting fishing to be found in Michigan.

Some fishermen hesitate to make the switch, probably due to lack of knowledge of how to fish a trout lake. Techniques are generally different, although a stream fisherman with knowledge to begin with can usually make the necessary adaptations to lake angling. It takes, for example, the same kind of casting on a lake as it does on a stream even if the retrieve is different.

Spinning is one of the deadliest methods of fishing either a lake or stream. Free-spooling allows the use of extremely light artificial baits and live baits. These allow the angler to frighten fewer fish when casting close to them on rises.

With artificials, either for casting or trolling, the spoon and spinner baits are most commonly used, although some of the midget plugs like the flatfish or tadpole are also highly successful. So are flies. Natural baits include minnows, night-crawlers, worms and wigglers, with trout spawn effective often in lakes.

Many fishermen troll too deep in the early season. While rainbows may not be on the surface now, they will probably be somewhere in the first six feet of water. If lower than that, a bait trolled at about that same depth will probably attract trout anyhow.

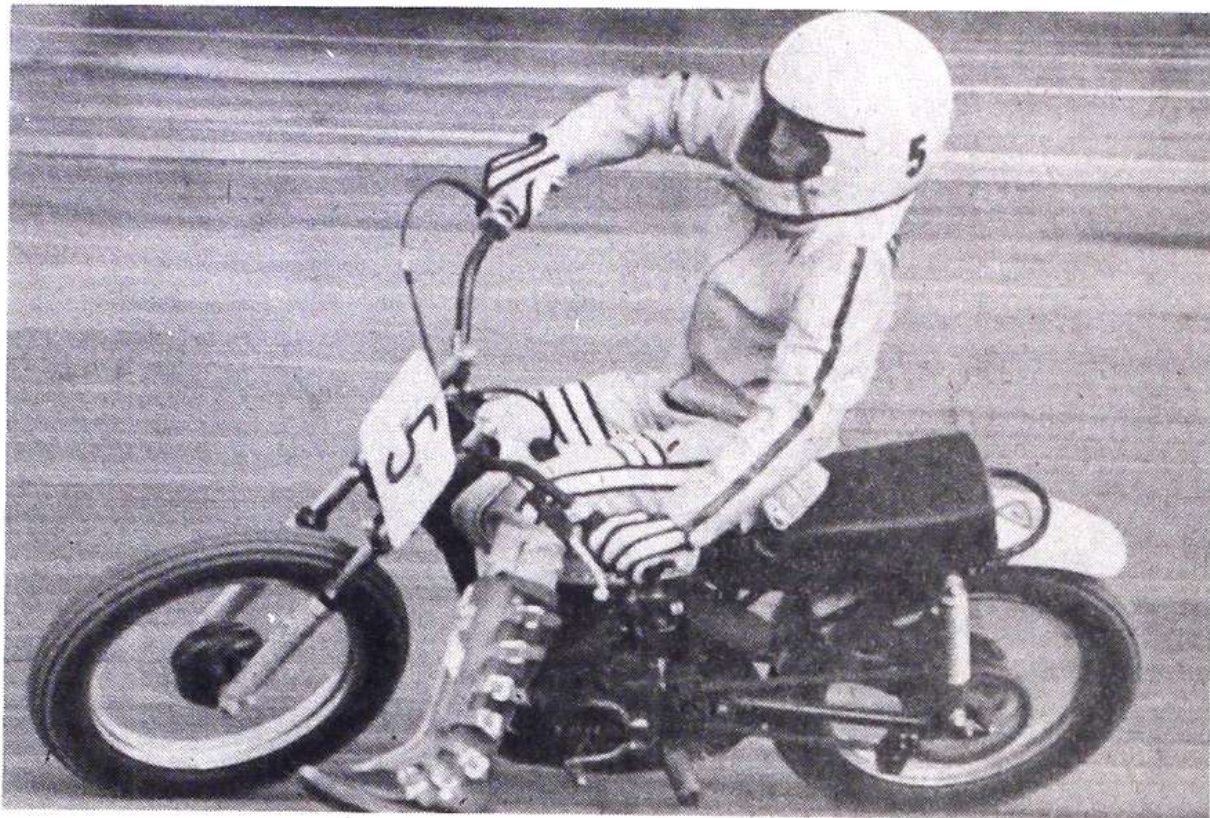

No one can say that trout will always remain at a specific level because they sometimes change depths rather rapidly. If a bait has produced for you at one time and depth but you get no action at a later date, try out other depths. Most anglers fish too shallow most of the time but in the early season this is probably all right. When waters begin to warm, though, trout may drop into 20 to 40-foot depths, with a lot depending on the size and characteristic of the lake involved.

Warm weather does not necessarily mean you will have to go to heavy tackle and deep fishing for trout. The drake hatches usually begin toward the end of May and are followed by the big "caddis" hatch or giant mayflies. At these times a good fly fisherman can have a real picnic in the evenings and very early mornings.

Fly hatches often get so heavy at night that it makes use of artificials ineffective. In this case, the fisherman who is willing to get out at dawn the next morning, will very often find the "clean-up squad" of trout still at work on the trout lakes and can get some choice fishing. And, it is usually uncrowded fishing because few fishermen really like to get up that early.

If you haven't tried the trout lakes yet, by all means give it a whirl this year. It doesn't matter whether you prefer trolling, bait casting or fly fishing. On an inland trout lake there is room for everybody.

There's just one problem. Trout that grow up in lakes are so husky and scrappy they are capable of nearly wearing your arm out!

Piston Trouble

Wayne's 12-year-old Jim White appears in perfect control and shows winning form in the 80 class during practice at the Short Track Motorcycle races held at E-Z Rider

Raceway in Milan. However, the young cyclist was knocked out of commission during the competition when a burned piston throttled his engine.

Local riders were shut out from first places at the weekly Short Track Motorcycle Races held at E-Z Rider Raceway in Milan.

More than 116 riders took part in the competition which included classes for amateurs and pros. Trophies were awarded to the top four finishers in each category with a cash purse added for the pro classification.

Westland gals begin swinging

The gals came out swinging in the Westland Parks and Recreation women's softball league and Studio Lounge immediately made its debut an auspicious one.

Posting a 28-0 rare shutout over Town & County Dodge, Studio Lounge successfully launched the defense of its league title.

Sharon Hedder was the winning pitcher and she received ample hitting support from her teammates who exploded for 14 runs in the fourth inning after tallying seven times in the first frame, four in the second and three in the third.

Vicky Pier accounted for a pair of doubles and a triple while Rose Dreher chalked up four hits, including a couple of doubles, a triple and single.

In other games, Wayne County General Hospital was victimized by

Wolverines win gold at Hazel Park

Keith Zimmerman represented Wayne-Westland's Wolverine Wrestling Club in the winner's circle at the annual "Tournament of Championships" held at Hazel Park.

Zimmerman, who captured top honors for the 11 and 12, 133-pound classification, was one of eight local medalists.

The Wolverines garnered three second places with Mike Novick (11-12, 126), Jeff Rose (119, 13-14) and Blair Temple (13-14, 133) and also placed third with John Novick (85, 9-10) and Victor Golden (8 and under, 52) and fourth with Steve Cuomo (9-10, 70).

The two-day wrestling event drew approximately 500 wrestlers from Michigan, Ohio and Canada. The Wolverines are coached by Sam Adams, Steve Fugaban, Bill Nelson and All Paciocco.

Fordson stuns Wayne, 68-64

Despite losing a close 68-64 track meet to Fordson, Wayne Memorial Coach Ernie Righetti figures his thinclads still have a chance of capturing the Great Lakes 8 Conference title.

That title will be decided today (Thurs., May 27) at Lincoln Park.

"We have to win the league meet and Fordson is going to have to finish ahead of Monroe for us to win the over-all championship," Righetti noted.

Wayne wasted an excellent three-event victory by Brett Hansen in its loss to Fordson. Hansen leaped 20 feet, 13-4 inches to finish first in the long jump. He also won the high hurdles with a 15.9, then grabbed the 220-yard dash thanks to a 22.8 effort.

Fordson posted a 45.0 to Wayne's 45.05 in winning the 440 relay to clinch the key decision.

"We went all out and received some outstanding performances from our team," Righetti said. "Unfortunately we got beat."

Meet results: Fordson 68, Wayne Memorial 64

Cherry Hill runners 'perfect'

Trampling Melvindale 72-56 and erasing Crestwood from its paths 79-52, Cherry Hill's thinclads carried a perfect 9-0 over-all and 7-0 league dual meet record into last night's Tri-River Conference meet.

Schafer was the host for Wednesday's (May 26) meet. Coach Joe Grasley's runners are shooting for their second consecutive conference championship and barring a complete break-down they should have little trouble claiming the coveted crown.

"I feel certain we can go all the way this year," said Grasley. "The kids have worked hard and the results show it."

Inkster bows to Robichaud

Inkster, the defending Class B state champ, found it was no match for arch-rival Robichaud in their Suburban Athletic Conference track confrontation last week.

Coach Mary Mabry's Vikings bowed to the Bulldogs 86-46 to bring the curtains down on the dual meet phase of the SAC season with a 2-2 record.

Robichaud will defend its SAC title this week, taking an undefeated 4-0 record into the season finale.

Romulus has track team of the future

Romulus thinclads will wrap up the 1976 campaign this week and second year Coach Al Wilkerson is satisfied that "he has a team for the future."

"If all of our kids stay with it," said Wilkerson after losing a 73-59 decision to Oak Park, "we're going to be awfully tough."

"This team is basically built around ninth and tenth graders and they have shown they are capable of competing with the best of them."

Romulus has compiled a 3-4 record and still has Lincoln Park and Crestwood (Dearborn Heights) left on its schedule.

Romulus garnered seven out of a possible 16 first places against Oak Park, which is tied with Dearborn Heights Annapolis for the newly-organized Metro-West Conference lead.

Tiger thinclads win a close one

Down by as much as 29 points after the 880-yard relay, Belleville thinclads shifted from low gear to fast and managed to pull out a 68-64 Suburban 8 Conference track victory from Trenton.

"Our second and third men came through for us during the running events," Medley said. "We eventually clinched the victory when we won the mile relay."

Belleville has been designated as the host for the fifth annual conference meet which will be held 3 p.m., Wed., June 2. Medley's Tigers sport a 3-2 league record going into this week's action.

Trenton dominated the field events, claiming four of five first places. Belleville averted a shutout from first thanks to Al Russell who cleared 11 feet, 6 inches in winning the pole vault.

Belleville went on to take six of the 11 running events. Mike Blazer again accounted for victories in the hurdles, stashing away the highs with a 14.7 run and the lows on a 20.5 finish.

Benefit softball set

The fight against muscular dystrophy will get some help from Romulus next week in the form of a benefit softball game.

The game will feature Romulus officials, including Mayor Jim Stewart, John Lewkowicz (treasurer) Leonard Folmar (clerk) and other notables.

The benefit game will be held 7:30 p.m., Wed., June 16 at Elmer Johnson Park.

"We're not charging an admission fee to see the game," said a recreation official, "however, all donations will be gratefully accepted."

The proceeds will be turned over to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

A pretty and close finish

Lunging for the 110-yard hurdles' finish line are Wayne Memorial's Jill Shackleford (at left) and Fordson's Cindy Wrenbeck. The officials awarded Miss Shackleford the victory by a fraction of a second as she was clocked in 16.1, the identical time carded by the Fordson hurdler. Wayne kept its Great Lakes 8 Conference girls' track record perfect as the Zebras won a 74-40 decision.

Wayne, Glenn playoff rivals

Wayne has met its arch rival Westland John Glenn on the diamond three times this season and has won two of the three times.

But the outcome of Game No. 4, scheduled for noon Saturday down in the flats at Wayne is the big one between the two teams.

At stake is a Class A district playoff berth for Sat., June 12's tournament at Belleville.

Meanwhile, Glenn continues to improve. Coach Norm Hoenes' Rockets forced title-hopeful Garden City East to play 11 innings before the Westlanders handed over a 6-5 decision.

Losing pitcher Mike Bednarski worked the final seven innings in relief of starter Jeff Ludwig. Bednarski whiffed six, gave up two hits and the winning run.

Ludwig was tagged for five runs, seven hits while he struck out three and also walked three. East's premier hurler Greg Emery went the distance. He tossed a six-hitter and fanned 12.

Glenn scored four times in the third inning as John Stafford was safe on an infield hit, trotted to second when Kevin Sanders walked and both runners moved up on a pass ball. Craig Walker singled them home.

With two away, Eric Borsvold kept the rally going as he was safe on an error, moved to second when Todd Deluca also got aboard on a boggle, then Bednarski sliced a 2-run single.

East cut into the lead in the bottom of the third with two runs and tied it up in the fifth at 4-all. Then, Coach Billy Joe Young's Panthers broke the deadlock with a run in the sixth.

In the Glenn seventh, Stafford led off with a single, was sacrificed to second by Kevin Sanders and moved to third on a wild pitcher. The Rocket baserunner scored on Craig Walker's sacrifice fly.

Emery helped win his own game when he singled in the 11th and moved up on a sacrifice, wild pitched to third and scored from third as Steve Pencola belted a sacrifice fly.

Glenn picked up its second and third Northwest Suburban Conference victories by sweeping both ends of a doubleheader from Thurston 2-1 and 9-3.

Walker scattered six Thurston hit in the first game, striking out eight and walking three.

The Westlanders took the lead in the first inning on a walk to Sanders, who went to second via a balk, and scored on a single by Mark Grabowski.

Thurston tied it up on the fifth and forced the issue into extra innings where Glenn scored in the eighth to win. Borsvold accounted for the winning run as he singled, stole second and moved to third on Sanders' double.

Walker was given an intentional pass and, with the bases loaded, Borsvold stole home.

Glenn banged out 10 hits in its 9-3 victory over Thurston in the nightcap. Sanders had a 2-for-4 night while Bednarski and Greg Linhoff split four hits. Walker went 3 for 4.

Bednarski worked the first 4 and two-third innings to earn the victory. He struck out three and walked nine before handing over the chores to Ludwig who finished up.

Romulus '9' falls to Ypsi, 12-7

Eagles' district playoff hopes shattered

Romulus' bid for a baseball berth at the Class A District Playoffs in Belleville next month were destroyed by Ypsilanti which won a 12-7 pre-district game last week from Coach Dennis Stol's Eagles.

Mike Marsiglia, who has accounted for four of the five Romulus victories this season, was the losing pitcher.

Ypsi got to the Romulus ace for six runs in the first period and built up an 8-3 lead after two innings.

Romulus' Jeff Frazee, a junior, drilled his first home run of the season, a solo blast in the second inning. Teammates Bill McBride went 3 for 3 and Dave Johnson picked up 3 for 4, including a pair of singles and a double for the losers.

Romulus entered the week with a 5-13 won-lost record and has five games left on its schedule.

Stol's Eagles also dropped a controversial 1-0 decision to Willow Run.

In the seventh Romulus' McBride hammered a triple but was called out by the umpire who said the Eagle base-runner failed to touch second base.

Stol lost the argument with the ump.

The next batter, Mark Kelly hit to deep short which would have scored the tying run.

"I felt we got shortchanged on that play," said Stol. "But there's nothing you can do about it now."

Marsiglia, who gave up a third inning home run to Tom Noland, was charged with the loss. He notched five strikeouts and walked one in a 5-hit pitching effort.

Smith eyes sponsor

Dave Smith
Olympics bound?

Like any top-notch athlete, Wayne's Dave Smith has set his sights on the Olympics.

And the former Wayne Memorial track star who is presently one of the premier distance runners in the country may realize his ambitions if he can get together enough money.

"I need a sponsor," said Smith, a senior at Eastern Michigan University. "I want to compete in the AAU Track and Field Championships and if I finish among the top runners in the 10,000 meters I will be invited to go to the Olympic trials."

Smith says he'll need about $300 to make the trip to UCLA, site of the AAU meet. The meet is scheduled for June 10-12.

At EMU, the durable cross country and track star has compiled a score of accolades, including a Mid-American Conference title.

If there is a sponsor available, he may contact Smith in Ypsilanti by telephone at 434-5498 or leave a message at Dave's parents' home at 326-5903. Phone after 6 p.m.

THE CINCH CONNECTION

"Selling's a Cinch in the Want Ads"

You've heard a sure thing described as a "lead pipe cinch". That's how newspaper readers feel about results they obtain from the Want Ads.

When you pick up the phone and dial our Classified department to sell your still valuable but not now used items, it's a cinch you are going to find buyers. Very often the articles will be sold on the first call. That's because people look to the Want Ads for good bargains in furniture, appliances, toys, bikes and trikes, sewing machines and musical instruments.

Realtors, automotive dealers and Business Services specialists find Classified a cinch when it comes to selling their goods and expertise.

Get in on a sure thing, whether you are buying or selling. Use the Want Ads.

IF YOU HAVE ANY QUESTION ABOUT FOOD
"Ask Bobbie"
CHATHAM'S
FOOD ECONOMIST

FROM OUR KITCHEN TO YOURS

Something new has been added at Chatham. We are the only super-market Company in the area that has a central deli kitchen. Yes, a brand new sparkling, shiny, modern and efficient kitchen that will help us with better quality control, sanitation and best of all absolutely fresh products.

This kitchen isn't one you would find in the women's magazines with a basic triangle plan, miles of storage space and dozens of electrical outlets. This kitchen has several rooms! One room for preparing fresh vegetables and fruits, one room for mixing ingredients (climate controlled to keep the food at the right safe temperature), a separate room for cooking and baking (no problem in this design, in heating up the entire kitchen), a huge freezer and another room that really is a refrigerator.

You couldn't mix 4 scrambled eggs in our mixers - but we can make salads and desserts for hundreds in them - all at one time. Instead of 3 meals a day plus evening snacks - our dream kitchen can produce thousands of pounds of various delicious foods per day - with consistent excellent quality.

Have you ever wished you could just turn on the hose and clean your kitchen? We can! The deli kitchen is all tile and stainless steel - hoses with a special sanitizing liquid are used daily for clean up. Food from the deli kitchen is delivered to the Chatham stores in refrigerated trucks daily.

Save Energy - Yours

Excellent - fresh salads, desserts, entrees and many other items are available in our deli's for your family meals, picnics and parties. Save energy (yours) and serve foods ready to eat from our deli's (thanks to our new central deli kitchen you are assured of the best.) Why shouldn't you let our new kitchen do the work for you?

TIPS on meat and poultry care

Federal and State inspection of meat and poultry packing is only part of the job of making sure that products stay clean and wholesome. When you buy the product, the rest is up to you—
